Patty Hearst, Harrises indicted

Patricia Hearst

where Miss Hearst was arrested Sept. 18.

U.S. Atty. James Browning, who is prosecuting Miss Hearst in San Francisco, said no decision had been reached yet on where she will go to trial first.

The Los Angeles district attorney's office, however, was taking steps on the assumption that she would go on trial here, either with the Harrises or later.

Mayerson announced that Dino Fulgoni, a deputy district attorney and head of the department's psychiatric section, had joined him in the case as a result of Miss Hearst's recent affidavit saying she had been brainwashed by the SLA after her abduction.

Mayerson was asked when he thought the Harris trial might start.

"They are entitled to trial within 60 days," he said.

Asked about possible penalties, Mayerson said the counts of kidnaping and kidnaping for the purpose of robbery carried possible maximum sentences of life imprisonment but that was up to a jury and judge.

The indictment revealed that 15 witnesses appeared before the grand jury over the past three days.

Among them were Thomas D. Matthews and Frank R. Sutter who allegedly were abducted by the trio and forced to drive around with them in their stolen automobiles.

The indictment charged that during the abduction of Sutter, a middle-aged man, the trio not only seized his automobile but robbed him of his money and wallet.

Matthews, a teenager, has subsequently described his kidnaping as "fun" and said he was sorry that Patty and the Harrises were caught.

The day after the shoplifting incident, six members of the SLA which abducted Miss Hearst from her apartment in Berkeley Feb. 4, 1974, were slain in a shootout with police in south Los Angeles.

The grand jury indictment superseded a district attorney's complaint and cancelled a preliminary hearing for the Harrises scheduled for next Wednesday.

Rolling Stone story of Patty 'accurate'

From Herald news services

The Justice Department Thursday confirmed reports in Rolling Stone magazine which gave details of what happened from Patricia Hearst's kidnaping on Feb. 4, 1974 up to just before her arrest in San Francisco on Sept. 18.

"I can't confirm it line by line, but my understanding is that it is essentially accurate," Robert L. Stevenson said.

'Snuff' sex films end with actual murder of females

NEW YORK (UPI) — A pornographic movie producer in Hollywood reportedly has purchased the script for a sex film that ends in the real murder and dismemberment of an unwitting actress on screen, police said Thursday.

"I got a call from the editor at the Hollywood Reporter," said Detective Joseph Horman of the Police Department's Organized Crime Control Bureau, which began investigating the existence of the so called "snuff" or "slasher" films about two months ago.

"He claimed to have spoken to a couple of porno producers, one of whom supposedly purchased a script written for a snuffer."

Horman said he has received dozens of tips concerning the films, which he said retail for about $300. A print costs $1,500.

He said very reliable underworld sources claim there are eight "snuff" films being circulated. Viewers at private screenings, he said, pay up to $200 to witness the filmed killings.

"Several weeks ago they supposedly had a private showing in New York," he said.

"I had first heard about them from a reporter," Horman said. "As a result of that initial inquiry I sought out my sources in the underworld, sources who have proven to be very reliable in the past.

"They said that in the end, the climax depicts the actual murder of the female," Horman said.

He indicated the films begin with an actress and several actors engaging in a variety of sex acts. Soon, however, a knife appears, and the actress is stabbed to death and dismembered.

"The information I had received said they were probably shot in Latin America. Argentina was the word I got," Horman said.

"We came closest in Miami, this was where we actually pinpointed them as recently as seven days ago," the detective said.

"It's such a secret operation, these things are well guarded," he said. In Miami, he said, "I had a source who had access to it," but "apparently the FBI is putting quite a bit of pressure on in southern Florida and that killed it."

In Washington, an FBI spokesman said the agency was aware of allegations the movies may be in the United States.

"We're investigating to determine if they are here and if they do violate any federal laws," the spokesman said.

"The thing that is really astonishing," Horman said, "is that there is such a market. That's the sickening part of it. That's almost as astonishing as the fact that somebody would actually commit a murder for the purpose of making a film."

Horman said persons showing such films could only be prosecuted under obscenity laws.

The FBI said any prosecution would involve transportation of pornographic material across state lines.

"The murder is in another jurisdiction," Horman said, "and proving it would be very difficult."

Higher postage rates begin Dec. 28

The Postal Service Thursday announced higher postage rates to include 13 cents for a first-class letter will begin Dec. 28, three days after Christmas. Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar announced earlier he would delay the long-expected increases until after Christmas, but had not set the date.

In addition, the new rates will increase the cost for post cards from 7 cents to 9 cents. Parcel post rates will go up about 10 per cent. The rate for air mail goes up from 13 to 17 cents.

Bill would block hike in Medicare costs

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of a special Senate Committee on Aging. Thursday introduced legislation to block the 13-per cent hike in Medicare costs to be borne by the elderly starting Jan. 1. "These sharp increases — coupled with the runaway inflation during the past year — can have the effect of financially crippling many older Americans," Church said.

Milk price supports hiked 2 cents

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz announced Thursday an increase of about 2 cents a half gallon in government supports for milk, but said this will have no immediate impact on retail prices. Wholesale market prices for milk are already above the new support level of 80 per cent of parity, Butz said. But he said consumers can nonetheless expect higher dairy prices during the next few months because of market pressures already created by short supplies.

The world

6 hostages freed in London

Six hostages held by three men in the basement of a restaurant since early last Sunday were released early today, Scotland Yard reported. A Scotland Yard spokesman said the six hostages were freed soon after 10 p.m. CDT and rushed to a hospital, climaxing a drama that began as bungled robbery attempt. Police Thursday arrested an Italian and a German and charged them with conspiring with Franklyn Davis, one of the holdup men who had held the hostages for five days in a basement storeroom of The Spaghetti House, a restaurant in London's Knightsbridge section.

Spanish policemen demand revenge

Policemen demanding revenge for assassinated comrades disrupted the funeral Thursday of three officers gunned down in guerrilla attacks. Police had to stop the demonstrators from carrying off the caskets on their shoulders. "He was my buddy," one demonstrator shouted. "I saw the bullet hole in his head. We must defend ourselves." The rightists delayed by 30 minutes the departure of the three coffins for burial.

International boycotts and Spainish retaliation canceled 200 flights to and from Spain. The protests against Spain were triggered by the execution Saturday of five revolutionaries.

Wholesale Price Index up again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Higher prices for food, fuels and metals increased the Wholesale Price Index by 0.6 per cent in September, the Labor Department reported Thursday.

For the past three months combined, the Labor Department said, prices increased at a compounded annual rate of 11.1 per cent for wholesale purchasers. This rate, if passed along to the retail level, would return the nation to the double-digit inflation that ended in January after 21 months.

Although the seasonally adjusted increase in September was less than rises of 0.8 per cent in August and 1.2 per cent in July, it was still the third highest for 1975.

And the moderating influence occurred only because of smaller increases in prices for processed foods and feeds — such as wheat made into bread or oats crushed for livestock.

The Labor Department said nonprocessed food prices rose 4.3 per cent, led by increases for vegetables, beef, pork, and fluid milk.

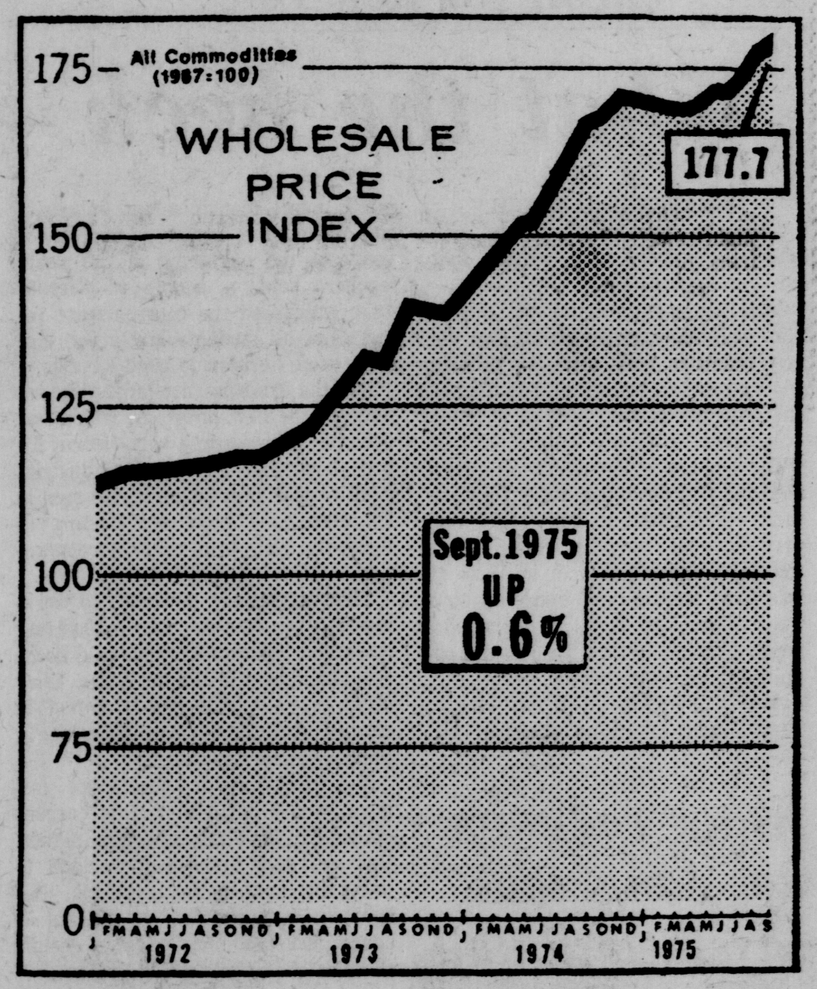
Prices for industrial commodities, which make up two-thirds of the index, continued to accelerate. From an increase of 0.1 per cent in April, industrial commodities rose 0.2 per cent in May, 0.4 per cent in June and July, 0.6 per cent in August and 0.7 per cent in September.

This acceleration is ominous because it reflects higher consumer prices ahead for clothing, homes, cars, gasoline, furnishings and heating fuel. For business, it means higher prices for raw materials, fuel, machinery and equipment.

The Labor Department said the six-month pattern of increases occurred along the production line from minerals dug from the earth to finished products ready for delivery to consumers.

As prices rise, consumers pay more for less. This leads to falling production and rising unemployment, similar to the recessionary cycle that was broken only last spring.

The Wholesale Price Index in September stood at 177.7 from a base of 100 in 1967. It meant wholesale buyers paid $177.70 for goods costing $100 eight years ago.



WHOLESALE PRICES rose 0.6 per cent in September. The WPI now stands at 177.7 from a base of 100 in 1967. That means buyers paid $177.70 for goods that cost $100 eight years ago.

Church lashes out at IRS

Tax return 'harassment' cited

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church accused the government Thursday of turning supposedly private tax returns "into instruments of harassment used against citizens for political reasons."

But Internal Revenue Commissioner Donald C. Alexander replied that he has abolished most IRS abuses since he took over in 1973, and is trying to do away with the rest.

Alexander, flanked by half a dozen top officials of his 88,000-member tax bureau, testified at a public session of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence.

He agreed with criticism that the IRS has overstepped its investigtive bounds, particularly as regards paying undue attention to groups and individuals.

His defense came in response to a sharply critical opening statement by Church, Idaho Democrat and chairman of the committee, who noted that the IRS "is one of the largest repositories of raw intelligence information in the United States," and said "the data collected by this behemoth lay bare the lives of 80 million individuals who file their tax forms each year."

Later in the day, Church announced the committee will hold public sessions starting next Wednesday on the supersecret National Security Agency.

After a closed-door meeting with Air Force General Lew Allen, Director of the NSA, and Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger, Church told reporters:

"The committee has decided to go public on certain practices of the NSA." He would not define the topics.

On the other side of the Capitol, the House intelligence committee voted 9 to 2 to subpoena Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for a memorandum reportedly critical of the intelligence gathering and decision processes during the Cyprus crisis of 1974.

The House committee, headed by Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y. was angered Tuesday when lower echelon department officials summoned for testimony on intelligence preparedness in last year's Cyprus crisis said they had been forbidden to testify.

Church said his Senate panel is examining ways in which other intelligence services have made use of the IRS as a "lending library" of tax information.

"Tax return confidentiality has eroded to the point where our federal government has turned these supposedly private documents into instruments of harassment used against citizens for political reasons," he said.

Church called attention to an IRS branch called the "Special Services Staff," which has the task of investigating political activists, and said:

"One wonders how an agency designed to collect revenue got into the business of defining and investigating political protestors. There were some 8,000 individuals and 3,000 organizations on the SSS list.

The incredible over-breadth of the SSS target list can only be appreciated by hearing some of the list of suspects:

"The American Civil Liberties Union; The American Library Association; the Conservative Book Club; the Ford Foundation; Head Start program; the NAACP; the University of North Carolina . . ."

Hirohito welcomed at White House

People

• Emperor Hirohito was welcomed by President Ford at the White House Thursday as a 21-gun salute boomed over the South Lawn, and a military honor guard snapped to attention. At a White-tie dinner in the White House last night, Hirohito paid tribute to "the generosity and goodwill" Americans showed Japan during the post World War II reconstruction period. He said "a new generation, with no personal memory of those years" is now growing to domination in both Japan and the United States.

Russ's grandfather shot the snake and rushed Fawn to a dog hospital, where she eventually recovered.

where Miss Hearst was arrested Sept. 18.

U.S. Atty. James Browning, who is prosecuting Miss Hearst in San Francisco, said no decision had been reached yet on where she will go to trial first.

The Los Angeles district attorney's office, however, was taking steps on the assumption that she would go on trial here, either with the Harrises or later.

Mayerson announced that Dino Fulgoni, a deputy district attorney and head of the department's psychiatric section, had joined him in the case as a result of Miss Hearst's recent affidavit saying she had been brainwashed by the SLA after her abduction.

Mayerson was asked when he thought the Harris trial might start.

"They are entitled to trial within 60 days," he said.

Asked about possible penalties, Mayerson said the counts of kidnaping and kidnaping for the purpose of robbery carried possible maximum sentences of life imprisonment but that was up to a jury and judge.

The indictment revealed that 15 witnesses appeared before the grand jury over the past three days.

Among them were Thomas D. Matthews and Frank R. Sutter who allegedly were abducted by the trio and forced to drive around with them in their stolen automobiles.

The indictment charged that during the abduction of Sutter, a middle-aged man, the trio not only seized his automobile but robbed him of his money and wallet.

Matthews, a teenager, has subsequently described his kidnaping as "fun" and said he was sorry that Patty and the Harrises were caught.

The day after the shoplifting incident, six members of the SLA which abducted Miss Hearst from her apartment in Berkeley Feb. 4, 1974, were slain in a shootout with police in south Los Angeles.

The grand jury indictment superseded a district attorney's complaint and cancelled a preliminary hearing for the Harrises scheduled for next Wednesday.

Rolling Stone story of Patty 'accurate'

From Herald news services

The Justice Department Thursday confirmed reports in Rolling Stone magazine which gave details of what happened from Patricia Hearst's kidnaping on Feb. 4, 1974 up to just before her arrest in San Francisco on Sept. 18.

"I can't confirm it line by line, but my understanding is that it is essentially accurate," Robert L. Stevenson said.

'Snuff' sex films end with actual murder of females

NEW YORK (UPI) — A pornographic movie producer in Hollywood reportedly has purchased the script for a sex film that ends in the real murder and dismemberment of an unwitting actress on screen, police said Thursday.

"I got a call from the editor at the Hollywood Reporter," said Detective Joseph Horman of the Police Department's Organized Crime Control Bureau, which began investigating the existence of the so called "snuff" or "slasher" films about two months ago.

"He claimed to have spoken to a couple of porno producers, one of whom supposedly purchased a script written for a snuffer."

Horman said he has received dozens of tips concerning the films, which he said retail for about $300. A print costs $1,500.

He said very reliable underworld sources claim there are eight "snuff" films being circulated. Viewers at private screenings, he said, pay up to $200 to witness the filmed killings.

"Several weeks ago they supposedly had a private showing in New York," he said.

"I had first heard about them from a reporter," Horman said. "As a result of that initial inquiry I sought out my sources in the underworld, sources who have proven to be very reliable in the past.

"They said that in the end, the climax depicts the actual murder of the female," Horman said.

He indicated the films begin with an actress and several actors engaging in a variety of sex acts. Soon, however, a knife appears, and the actress is stabbed to death and dismembered.

"The information I had received said they were probably shot in Latin America. Argentina was the word I got," Horman said.

"We came closest in Miami, this was where we actually pinpointed them as recently as seven days ago," the detective said.

"It's such a secret operation, these things are well guarded," he said. In Miami, he said, "I had a source who had access to it," but "apparently the FBI is putting quite a bit of pressure on in southern Florida and that killed it."

In Washington, an FBI spokesman said the agency was aware of allegations the movies may be in the United States.

"We're investigating to determine if they are here and if they do violate any federal laws," the spokesman said.

"The thing that is really astonishing," Horman said, "is that there is such a market. That's the sickening part of it. That's almost as astonishing as the fact that somebody would actually commit a murder for the purpose of making a film."

Horman said persons showing such films could only be prosecuted under obscenity laws.

The FBI said any prosecution would involve transportation of pornographic material across state lines.

"The murder is in another jurisdiction," Horman said, "and proving it would be very difficult."

Higher postage rates begin Dec. 28

The Postal Service Thursday announced higher postage rates to include 13 cents for a first-class letter will begin Dec. 28, three days after Christmas. Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar announced earlier he would delay the long-expected increases until after Christmas, but had not set the date.

In addition, the new rates will increase the cost for post cards from 7 cents to 9 cents. Parcel post rates will go up about 10 per cent. The rate for air mail goes up from 13 to 17 cents.

Bill would block hike in Medicare costs

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of a special Senate Committee on Aging. Thursday introduced legislation to block the 13-per cent hike in Medicare costs to be borne by the elderly starting Jan. 1. "These sharp increases — coupled with the runaway inflation during the past year — can have the effect of financially crippling many older Americans," Church said.

Milk price supports hiked 2 cents

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz announced Thursday an increase of about 2 cents a half gallon in government supports for milk, but said this will have no immediate impact on retail prices. Wholesale market prices for milk are already above the new support level of 80 per cent of parity, Butz said. But he said consumers can nonetheless expect higher dairy prices during the next few months because of market pressures already created by short supplies.

6 hostages freed in London

Six hostages held by three men in the basement of a restaurant since early last Sunday were released early today, Scotland Yard reported. A Scotland Yard spokesman said the six hostages were freed soon after 10 p.m. CDT and rushed to a hospital, climaxing a drama that began as bungled robbery attempt. Police Thursday arrested an Italian and a German and charged them with conspiring with Franklyn Davis, one of the holdup men who had held the hostages for five days in a basement storeroom of The Spaghetti House, a restaurant in London's Knightsbridge section.

Spanish policemen demand revenge

Policemen demanding revenge for assassinated comrades disrupted the funeral Thursday of three officers gunned down in guerrilla attacks. Police had to stop the demonstrators from carrying off the caskets on their shoulders. "He was my buddy," one demonstrator shouted. "I saw the bullet hole in his head. We must defend ourselves." The rightists delayed by 30 minutes the departure of the three coffins for burial.

International boycotts and Spainish retaliation canceled 200 flights to and from Spain. The protests against Spain were triggered by the execution Saturday of five revolutionaries.

Wholesale Price Index up again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Higher prices for food, fuels and metals increased the Wholesale Price Index by 0.6 per cent in September, the Labor Department reported Thursday.

For the past three months combined, the Labor Department said, prices increased at a compounded annual rate of 11.1 per cent for wholesale purchasers. This rate, if passed along to the retail level, would return the nation to the double-digit inflation that ended in January after 21 months.

Although the seasonally adjusted increase in September was less than rises of 0.8 per cent in August and 1.2 per cent in July, it was still the third highest for 1975.

And the moderating influence occurred only because of smaller increases in prices for processed foods and feeds — such as wheat made into bread or oats crushed for livestock.

The Labor Department said nonprocessed food prices rose 4.3 per cent, led by increases for vegetables, beef, pork, and fluid milk.

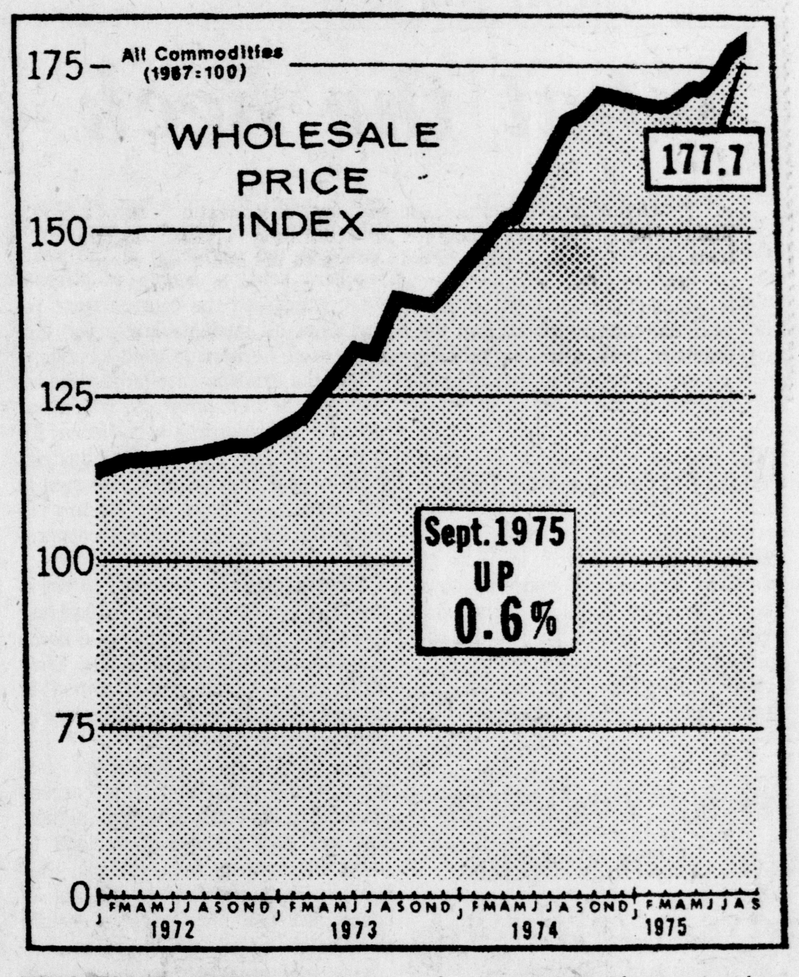
Prices for industrial commodities, which make up two-thirds of the index, continued to accelerate. From an increase of 0.1 per cent in April, industrial commodities rose 0.2 per cent in May, 0.4 per cent in June and July, 0.6 per cent in August and 0.7 per cent in September.

This acceleration is ominous because it reflects higher consumer prices ahead for clothing, homes, cars, gasoline, furnishings and heating fuel. For business, it means higher prices for raw materials, fuel, machinery and equipment.

The Labor Department said the six-month pattern of increases occurred along the production line from minerals dug from the earth to finished products ready for delivery to consumers.

As prices rise, consumers pay more for less. This leads to falling production and rising unemployment, similar to the recessionary cycle that was broken only last spring.

The Wholesale Price Index in September stood at 177.7 from a base of 100 in 1967. It meant wholesale buyers paid $177.70 for goods costing $100 eight years ago.



WHOLESALE PRICES rose 0.6 per cent in September. The WPI now stands at 177.7 from a base of 100 in 1967. That means buyers paid $177.70 for goods that cost $100 eight years ago.

Church lashes out at IRS

Tax return 'harassment' cited

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church accused the government Thursday of turning supposedly private tax returns "into instruments of harassment used against citizens for political reasons."

But Internal Revenue Commissioner Donald C. Alexander replied that he has abolished most IRS abuses since he took over in 1973, and is trying to do away with the rest.

Alexander, flanked by half a dozen top officials of his 88,000-member tax bureau, testified at a public session of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence.

He agreed with criticism that the IRS has overstepped its investigtive bounds, particularly as regards paying undue attention to groups and individuals.

His defense came in response to a sharply critical opening statement by Church, Idaho Democrat and chairman of the committee, who noted that the IRS "is one of the largest repositories of raw intelligence information in the United States," and said "the data collected by this behemoth lay bare the lives of 80 million individuals who file their tax forms each year."

Later in the day, Church announced the committee will hold public sessions starting next Wednesday on the supersecret National Security Agency.

After a closed-door meeting with Air Force General Lew Allen, Director of the NSA, and Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger, Church told reporters:

"The committee has decided to go public on certain practices of the NSA." He would not define the topics.

On the other side of the Capitol, the House intelligence committee voted 9 to 2 to subpoena Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for a memorandum reportedly critical of the intelligence gathering and decision processes during the Cyprus crisis of 1974.

The House committee, headed by Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y. was angered Tuesday when lower echelon department officials summoned for testimony on intelligence preparedness in last year's Cyprus crisis said they had been forbidden to testify.

Church said his Senate panel is examining ways in which other intelligence services have made use of the IRS as a "lending library" of tax information.

"Tax return confidentiality has eroded to the point where our federal government has turned these supposedly private documents into instruments of harassment used against citizens for political reasons," he said.

Church called attention to an IRS branch called the "Special Services Staff," which has the task of investigating political activists, and said:

"One wonders how an agency designed to collect revenue got into the business of defining and investigating political protestors. There were some 8,000 individuals and 3,000 organizations on the SSS list.

The incredible over-breadth of the SSS target list can only be appreciated by hearing some of the list of suspects:

"The American Civil Liberties Union; The American Library Association; the Conservative Book Club; the Ford Foundation; Head Start program; the NAACP; the University of North Carolina . . ."

At a White-tie dinner in the White House last night, Hirohito paid tribute to "the generosity and goodwill" Americans showed Japan during the post World War II reconstruction period. He said "a new generation, with no personal memory of those years" is now growing to domination in both Japan and the United States.

District 3 state police to relocate, merge posts

Illinois State Police will move from the Des Plaines District 3 headquarters in January to a new central location in the county after spending more than 50 years in Des Plaines.

Capt. William P. Burt, commander for County Districts 3 and 4 in Crestwood, confirmed Thursday plans are in the works to establish a new central headquarters for the 181 uniformed troopers patroling Cook County.

The move was prompted by recommendations from a special study recently completed for the state police. Burt said the study was done by a management consulting firm hired through a special grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

No site for the new headquarters has been chosen yet, but Burt said officials are looking for a location in a central area, similar to the County Sheriff's Police new Maywood headquarters, near expressway access.

THE NEW DISTRICT will be numbered 17 in the state police system. There currently are 18 state police districts statewide.

"We think we can provide better service this way," Burt said.

The state police facility at 477 Des Plaines Ave. and the south suburban Crestwood headquarters will be closed once the move is completed, Burt added.

The state police tollway division, District 15, will remain in Oak Brook.

Burt has commanded both county Districts 3 and 4 since Aug. 16. The joint command was part of the groundwork for the eventual union of the districts.

Other results and recommendations of the consultant's study are contained in a four-volume work. Burt said the study contains recommendations on goals and future directions of the state police.

They enroll for new role

What the heck — mixed home ec

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Who says girls aren't handy with tools? And where is it written that boys can't sew or cook?

Certainly not in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 junior high schools. For the first time this year, girls are picking up hammers in industrial arts classes and boys are mixing recipes in home economics.

The change is the result of a new state law ordering schools to open their curriculums to both sexes and provide equal opportunities for all. In the past, industrial arts in Dist. 25 was open only to boys and only girls were allowed to enroll in home economics. This year, both sexes are required to take the courses.

ALL STUDENTS at South Junior High School take nine weeks of art, music, home economics and industrial arts during the course of the school year. At the beginning of the year, teachers said, a couple of parents were concerned the courses were required of all students and a few students were hesitant to begin classes.

But the students are adjusting rapidly to the new program, which has become a rewarding experience for both boys and girls, said industrial arts teacher Don Schmidt. He said in his class, the boys are helping to teach the girls in a spirit of cooperation.

The students are now used to working together in what was exclusively male and female territory, said home economics teacher Paula White. They seem to be taking more interest in classes and have renewed pride in their projects, she said.

The ideal way to operate the program would be to make the courses optional to students, said Miss White. But she said the school decided to make the courses required this year because it has a limited amount of space and can only have a certain number of students per classroom.

THE HOME ECONOMICS course is broken down into a unit on foods and another on sewing and creative stitchery. In sewing, the boys are learning to make back packs. In foods, students are learning how to measure and read a recipe and they're studying basic nutrition, said teacher Cheryl Vandell. The upper grades are preparing meals.

Industrial arts classes are broken down into a unit on woods and another on drafting. Students in woods are learning how to use tools and how to stain, finish and wax wood work, said teacher Ron Wallach. Drafting students are working on mechanical drawings.

The idea of the program is to give students a taste of these subjects. If they develop an interest in a particular area, they can follow through with it in high school.

The teachers are pleased with the program. "I'm just sorry it didn't happen years go," said Schmidt. "We may not make scholars out of them, but at least they'll know what is going on in the world," he said.

SCHMIDT SAID HE tells his students what they're learning today will come in handy when they're adults and on their own. A woman should be able to know how to change a washer in a faucet rather than call a plumber, and a man should be able to cook his own meals and mend a tear in his clothing.

"It's practical, and it's needed for life," said Mrs. Vandell.

Society is filled with sex-role stereotypes, teachers said. We are taught that the woman's place is in the kitchen, but the man takes care of anything mechanical, they said. By giving students a taste of both worlds "maybe they can get rid of some of those stereotypes," said Miss White.

gram to lower the radiation level if it is too high.

So far, only two readings have been taken in Arlington Heights to indicate radiation levels above the proposed EPA standard.

"Based on an average consumption of 300 gallons of water a year, the board (of health) calculated that it would take 70 to 90 years of continuous consumption before a possible health problem would exist at the radiation levels reported," Weinand said.

IN ADDITION, many residents have water softeners which remove minerals, including radioactive elements, from the water before reaching the household tap, he said.

Woman hurt in Meadows apartment fire

by STIRLING MORITA

A Rolling Meadows woman, three months pregnant, was critically burned Thursday afternoon when fire engulfed her Whispering Glen apartment.

Susan Rose, 23, of 4724 Arbor Dr., was listed in critical condition Thursday night in the burn unit of Evanston Hospital. She was found in the bedroom of the apartment with second- and third-degree burns on her face, hands and neck.

A patrolman and firefighter suffered smoke inhalation while trying to rescue Mrs. Rose. Patrolman Frank May, 23, and Firefighter Paul Chybicki, 35, were released after treatment at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

ABOUT 30 RESIDENTS, mostly children, were evacuated from the building at the southern edge of the complex after the fire started about 3 p.m. Mrs. Rose's dog and cat were killed, apparently by smoke inhalation, firefighters said.

Lt. Ted Loesch, one of the first authorities on the scene, donned an air pack, entered the smoke-filled apartment and rescued Mrs. Rose, who was lying on a bed, Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty said.

Rolling Meadows firefighters, assisted by Arlington Heights firemen, quickly extinguished the blaze. Damage was estimated at about $3,500, Fogarty said.

THE FIRE STARTED in a couch in the living room, officials said. Although no cause had been determined, Fogarty said authorities were investigating careless use of smoking materials as the possible cause. State fire marshals were called in to join the investigation.

Donna Kielbasa, a next door neighbor, said a truck driver saw the flames from the parking lot and went to the second-floor apartment and knocked on the door. The driver summoned Mrs. Kielbasa, who called the fire department.

When the purchase of a house is financed, the rate of interest charged by the lender varies with the money supply and also with the amount of risk involved. Loans that are guaranteed by an agency of the U.S. Government, such as Veterans Administration and FHA loans, involve less risk than conventional loans and therefore carry lower interest rates.
Many of these low interest loans were made with a very small down payment. A home financed in this way offers a real bargain from the loan standpoint. On approval of the buyer's credit by the VA, a veteran can transfer his loan obligation to the new owner, but there are certain potential trouble areas that must be handled properly.

NORTRAN bus cutbacks topic of Oct. 15 hearing

Proposed bus service cuts by the financially troubled North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTRAN) will be discussed at an Oct. 15 public hearing.

The hearing, at 7:30 p.m. in Des Plaines City Hall, 1420 Miner St., will give North and Northwest suburban residents an opportunity to comment on discontinuing or altering 14 routes.

The list includes Des Plaines local service, but NORTRAN expects the Regional Transportation Authority to begin new intra-city routes on an experimental basis. The routes would be funded completely by the RTA until they could be evaluated.

NORTRAN HAS examined its route structure because it has been unable to get 100 per cent deficit financing from the RTA. The RTA board has a temporary policy of fully funding only transit systems that earn at least 65 per cent of their operating costs from fares.

Joseph DiJohn, executive director of NORTRAN, said the proposed route changes, with fare changes, could improve NORTRAN's financial situation by an estimated $162,700.

NORTRAN has proposed dropping former United Motor Coach Co. franchise routes 1, 14, 20, 22, 30, 31, 32, 42, 60, 73 and 80, plus service to Arlington Park Race Track.

Bart T. Murphy, NORTRAN chairman, said the routes, some of which serve Des Plaines and Park Ridge, were operated by United solely to protect its franchise. "They have been and will continue to be heavy losers," he said.

NORTRAN officials have also proposed cuts in Skokie local service and standardization of fares to 45 cents for suburban areas and $1 to the Chicago Loop. The district would also like permission to pick up passengers along the route into the Loop.

NORTRAN ALSO would consolidate routes to the Jefferson Park CTA terminal.

Adjustments in the fares will bring in an additional $50,000 from the state as compensation for student transportation, DiJohn said, but the changes will cost the district $30,000 in other revenue.

DiJohn said the proposed changes still will not bring NORTRAN within the RTA efficiency standards, but he said he hopes the RTA will compromise somewhat after NORTRAN has done what it can to eliminate money-losing routes.

Despite RTA's refusal to give NORTRAN full deficit funding, the RTA board has approved a $250,000 "loan" to carry the district through October.

Sewage treatment to cost small industries more

An amendment to a Metropolitan Sanitary District ordinance could result in higher sewer charges for small industrial plants.

Until recently only two plants in the Northwest suburbs had to pay an "industrial surcharge" fee for sewage treatment.

But new legislation passed by the General Assembly has required the sanitary district to drop its exemption for plants that discharge less than 10,000 gallons per day.

The district will now compare the cost of treating sewage from each industrial concern with real estate taxes paid by it to the district. If the taxes are less than the treatment cost, the industry will have to pay the difference as a surcharge.

The only exemption allowed under the new ordinance is a "domestic sewage deduction" from the total sewage effluent, based on the number of employes at any given plant.

Sanitary District Engineer Richard Lanyon said the district doesn't know whether the change will require more industries to make surcharge payments.

Under the old ordinance, the high assessed valuation of most plants in the suburbs and the 10,000-gallon exemption combined to keep most local industries from paying the charge.

Local plants that use treatment equipment as part of their manufacturing process also get a break on the surcharge because the cost is determined both by total sewage discharge and the amount of suspended solids in the discharge.

Death penalty ruling lauded

The Illinois Supreme Court has acted wisely in striking down a 1973 law which brought back the electric chair to Illinois.

In a ruling announced Monday the court sidestepped the central issue of whether the death penalty is "cruel and unusual punishment."

Instead, it tossed out the law because of procedural problems. The court ruled that our state constitution doesn't allow a three-judge panel to decide when the death penalty should be imposed, nor does it permit an appeal procedure mandated by the law.

Despite the ruling, capital punishment could return to Illinois, for the General Assembly could write a new law at a later date. And, on the federal level, the Supreme Court is considering a landmark case which could either legitimize or ban the present "selective" reasons for capital punishment.

The Illinois law thrown out Tuesday is typical of the melange of state laws which sprang up after the Supreme Court in 1972 severely limited capital punishment. These laws tend to limit the death penalty to special cases, such as for mass murderers or killers of policemen or prison guards.

But it's never been proved that any death penalty has reduced crime in the United States. Between 1930 and 1973, out of some 400,000 murder convictions, only 334 persons were executed. Even the most cold-blooded criminal must have known that execution wasn't much of a threat.

Capital punishment is also an expensive, cruel and senseless ritual which does not dignify our system of criminal justice. For years we permitted the state's killing of its criminals while condemning murder among our private citizens. Violent death should have no place in our society.

There's an appallingly high crime rate in the United States. But emotion-charged and illogical solutions which do little to deter crime, while degrading our nation's principles of justice, must be rejected.

Monday's Illinois court decision should remind us that there are other, less violent, ways to reduce crime. These involve developing a better system of dispensing justice and fighting crime, as well as searching out and destroying the roots of criminality in the United States. Capital punishment is not and never has been a deterrent to violent crime.

Betty develops own personality

by HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Betty Ford has come into her own as a public personality — perhaps not so much for what she has done but for the stands she has taken, letting the chips fall where they may.

She is one of the few first ladies in the nation's history who appears to be fearless in her statements on human problems and has aroused both admiration and sometimes criticism for her outspoken views.

Several years ago when her husband was on the political speechmaking circuit — one year 200 days out of 365 — and Mrs. Ford bore the major burden of raising four children, including three husky boys, she went to a psychiatrist and the problem boiled down to her having an identity of her own.

SHE HAS THAT now. She adjusted to the White House. More than that she has become the mistress of her own domain.

She first took the spotlight when she made it clear that she was a strong supporter for the Equal Rights Amendment. First ladies in the past have tried to avoid controversy, if possible, with the full encouragement of their husbands who do not want to rock the political boat. But Mrs. Ford openly lobbied old friends from Capitol Hill.

She even called Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., whose opposition was well known when the ERA vote was coming up before the Arizona state legislature. She struck out, but she did not regret trying.

BETTY FORD

In a television interview she said she "wouldn't be surprised" if her daughter Susan, 18, had an affair before marriage and that she would be there if her daughter needed to talk out her problems. Her comments were widely quoted and she got a flood of letters, pro and con, on the touchy subject.

In responding to the more irate women who wrote her, Mrs. Ford said, "I do not believe in premarital relations, but I realize many in today's generation do not share my views. However, this must never cause us to withdraw the love, the counseling and the understanding that they may need now more than ever before. This is the essence of responsible parenthood."

SHE WAS CRITICIZED but President Ford defended his wife and their 26 years of happy marriage in every interview he gave, saying her views had been distorted.

Some of her comments have shocked the conservative establishment. But Ford rarely travels without hearing good words from the crowd for his wife, and there is usually a cluster of women holding signs thanking her for supporting ERA.

There is no question that she has great influence over her husband in a wifely, understanding way. She teases him a lot and gets her point across. In recent times, no other president has taken his wife out to dinner at a Washington restaurant, just as a twosome, but the Fords do that often.

When day is done, the President strolls back to the family quarters from the Oval Office and lets his hair down over a drink or two with his wife before dinner. "That's the way he relaxes," said one aide.

Ford has no strong Harry Hopkins, as FDR did for companionship; nor a Col. Edward House as Woodrow Wilson did. He has a close relationship with his wife, and she is tuned in to what is going on in his official world.

When asked if she had discussed security problems with her husband in the aftermath of two attempts on his life in California, she looked astounded at a TV interviewer and with a rare show of anger she said: "Of course. I am his wife."

Stengel will be missed

You don't have to be a baseball fan to have appreciated the life, times and charm of Charles Dillon (Casey) Stengel.

For 53 years this grizzled character with the oversized ears (he acted like a cross between Jimmy Durante and Groucho Marx) was beloved by millions who watched him on the baseball scene.

As a player, he was remembered for the moment a sparrow flew from beneath his cap. As a manager and as a talker, he hopelessly convoluted thousands of ordinary English sentences, leaving his listeners in merriment and confusion, while arousing the ire of English teachers across this land.

Casey's achievements as manager of the Yankees are legend to baseball fans everywhere. DiMaggio and Mantle, Berra and Rizzuto, Maris and Ford; all were the powerful heroes of the Stengel-managed teams that terrorized the American League from 1948 to 1960.

But what was important about this singular man who died this week was that he made us laugh at his language and his cantankerous and colorful ways. It will be a long, long time before a person of his charm again shuffles across the sports scene.

Gun control editorial criticized

After reading your editorial of Thursday, Sept. 25, renewing your call for gun control legislation, I was again reminded of what to me is an amazing contradiction.

Most newspapers and other forms of mass media are the first to rise to the defense when any actual, potential or imagined threat is posed to the First Amendment to the Constitution. On the other hand, they are also first to criticize, decry and label those who would defend the Second Amendment with equal vigor as ". . . less rational . . ." and indeed purport to be leaders in the fight against those who would defend ". . . the right to keep and bear arms, . . ."

The college question: Which to choose?

by J. M. HALL

(Third of a series)

Often this last element of the college question causes the most grief for students and parents. Now you must pick one college.

College guides at your library can help you narrow the list to a few that offer what you want where you want it for a cost you can afford. But guides cannot and should not tell you which one.

The process of selecting a college should be like buying a house. When you see a house advertised in the right part of town, with the right number of bedrooms for the right price you go take a look.

When you narrow your list of colleges to a few, ask students and parents in your town who know the school. The college should provide the names of their students and alumni in your town. Then go look them over.

A college campus is a community of students and teachers. The incoming freshman can tell a great deal about the school by talking to other students on the campus. Parents will have an immediate impression of the college community and can use their time well by talking with teachers.

Too often parents and students fail to ask questions about the colleges they visit. Or they meet only deans and administrative personnel. Deans and admission personnel will not be in the classroom with your student every day. Talk to the teachers.

Ask them about student-teacher ratios, large lecture classes and student-teacher conferences. Ask teachers what they recommend as keys to student success in their classes.

Some schools have better faculties than others. You may or may not get a feeling for this. But parents are very likely to hear what the teachers really think about the school. Teachers know and often they will tell you the strengths and weaknesses. Ask them.

In general, both the student and his parents should be able to size up the campus community much in the way you would a neighborhood where you were thinking about living. Most of those parent fears about drugs and orgies in the dorms can be either confirmed or put to rest in a visit to the campus.

Follow the routine of the campus community for a couple of hours. Eat lunch with students in the union or school cafeteria. Look around at key resources like the library and museums. Then look over the town. After several hours both the student and his parents should have some definite impressions about the college community.

If you do this at several locations on your narrowed list of prospects the best one for the new student will become more obvious.

Parents will be more willing to let their son or daughter make the final choice if they have visited each campus with their young freshman. Finally, the choice of which college may well come down to the one where the student feels most at home.

Here all his family training and all the information you have been able to gather in the past several weeks about colleges will merge in the first major decision the young adult has to make about his or her life style.

Remember, parents, it is their life style and their life goals which are now emerging in this major decision. Information is the best safeguard against making a mistake in this choice.

Mistakes are made, however, in selecting a college. If it becomes obvious you have made a mistake, discuss it and change schools using the same selection process.

If you have carefully investigated each school by visiting the campus, talking to students and faculty and checking the school's resources as well as surroundings, your choice will probably be a good one.

Energy vote split on party lines

From Roll Call Report

With the exception of one Downstate Democrat, U.S. Rep. George Shipley of Olney, the Illinois delegation in the U.S. House of Representatives split on party lines as the House passed its energy policy bill last week.

All Illinois Democrats voting, except Shipley, favored the proposal, while the 11 Illinois Republicans opposed the bill, which President Ford has threatened to veto.

In a close vote seen as a measure of growing House sentiment against busing as a tool for desegregation of schools, Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and five other Illinoisians helped provide the three-vote margin by which an anti-busing amendment was passed.

In the Senate, a resolution disapproving President Ford's recommendation that pay raises for Congress and certain federal employes be restricted to 5 per cent was rejected, with U.S. Sen. Charles H. Percy and U.S. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III casting opposite votes.

Following is a summary of key votes by the Illinois delegation for the period from Sept. 18-24.

Included are votes by Percy and Stevenson and Northwest suburban congressman Crane and U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th.

House

YES: Democrats Mikva, Metcalf, Murphy, Russo, Collins, Rostenkowski, Yates, Hall, Price and Simon.

NO: Republicans Crane, Derwinski, Hyde, McClory, Erlenborn, Anderson, O'Brien, Michel, Railsback, Findley and Madigan; Democrat Shipley.

BUSING. An amendment to the oil policy bill, to prohibit the use of gasoline to bus students to schools outside their neighborhoods, passed 204-201.

YES: Republicans Crane, Derwinski, Hyde and Michel; Democrat Shipley.

No: Democrats Mikva, Metcalfe, Murphy, Collins, Rostenkowski, Yates, Hall, Price and Simon; Republicans McClory, Erlenborn, Anderson, O'Brien, Raisback, Findley and Madigan.

PANAMA CANAL. An amendment to kill a previously approved ban on State Dept. negotiations which could lead to relinquishing U.S. control over the Panama Canal Zone, rejected, 203-197.

The ban, which was cosponsored by Crane, was approved in June.

YES: Democrats Metcalfe, Collins, Yates, Hall, Shipley, Price and Simon; Republicans Hyde, McClory, Erlenborn, Anderson, Michel, Railsback and Findley.

NO: Republicans Crane, O'Brien and Madigan; Democrats Murphy, Russo and Rostenkowski.

NOT VOTING: Democrats Mikva, Fary and Annunzio; Republican Derwinski.

Senate

PAY RAISE. A resolution disapproving President Ford's recommendation that the pay raise already approved by Congress for its members and many federal employes be restricted to 5 per cent, rather than the 8.66 per cent previously approved, defeated 53-39.

Pirates to host Cards in feature

by KEITH REINHARD

The Mid-Suburban North is seeing red this weekend.

It isn't a case of everyone in the division being mad at each other. The spotlight game is simply one pitting the two crimson-bannered clubs — Arlington and Palatine — against one another.

Wheeling will be heading to Hersey while Fremd plays host to Buffalo Grove to round out the divisional slate this weekend. Both of these games get underway at 8:00 tonight.

The Cardinals and Pirates face off Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Palatine den. It deserves the most attention because the verdict is regarded as up for grabs. On the other hand both the Vikings and Wildcats have underdog labels to surmount in their quest for victory.

"Underdog is putting it mildly," sighed Wheeling coach Gerry Clinnin of his forthcoming appointment in Huskyland. "I feel more like Daniel on his way to the lion's den."

Clinnin would have good reason to feel that way even though he's new to the MSL coaching scene. The log shows that the Wildcats have never bettered Hersey on the gridiron going back to 1969 when the rivalry was initiated.

"We feel we can give a better accounting of ourselves this time around but we're realistic," Clinnin added. "Hersey has a strong football tradition and they've shown every indication of maintaining it this year."

Fremd has an uphill battle on its hands as it tries to keep a brief winning streak alive. They toppled Wheeling last Friday to end a long victory drought.

"It was a whole mass of emotions last week," recalled Vike mentor Joe Samojedny, "Finding out what it's like to win again has put a lot more fun in it for all of us and I believe it will make us an improved ball club."

Bison pilot Grant Blaney agrees with that assessment, pointing out, "Fremd's victory had to bolster their confidence. They've been getting better every game this season and we're certainly not going to take them lightly . . . we just can't afford to."

Buffalo Grove, like Fremd, is coming off a win this weekend. The triumph was at the expense of Palatine and put coach Arv Herstedt's outfit in a position of needing to bounce back Saturday or face the possibility of being an also-ran.

Thickening the plot at Ost Field Saturday, of course, is the fact that their foe, the Cards, is in exactly the same boat. Both are excellent teams. Both opened the '75 campaign by winning their first three contests.

But both Palatine and Arlington now stand with 0-1 marks in the North Division race. The season isn't long enough to allow for much more in the loss column.

"NEITHER we nor Palatine can afford to lose again," observed Haines, adding, "I would say that the loser of our game will be eliminated."

The Card mentor went on, "I picked them in the preseason poll to win the conference. We've watched them and they're a strong ball club. This (Jim) Popp is probably the best back we've faced . . . he's not very big but he hits and spins and is difficult to bring down. Their quarterback is impressive too . . . the kind that can really burn you."

Herstedt had mutual sentiments about his foe: "We saw them play Hersey . . . those were two outstanding football teams out there. Arlington could beat anybody on any given day. We're just hoping Saturday isn't one of those days . . . we can't afford another loss any more than they can."

'Must' action

South outfits face crucial games

by KEITH REINHARD

"Must" is the magic word in the South Divison of the Mid-Suburban League this weekend.

It may not turn out that way but for the moment all three contests Friday and Saturday carry the 'must' label for one side or the other . . . or both.

Looking at the standings, there are two teams in the South still undefeated, two owning one loss each and another pair still in quest of their first conference win. Looking at the schedule reveals that the two unbeaten squads will be pairing off against the teams with one loss each while the winless squads collide.

Here's how it reads: Hoffman Estates (2-0) at Prospect (1-1) and Rolling Meadows (0-3) at Conant (0-2) tonight at 8:00. Schaumburg (3-0) entertains Forest View (2-1) tomorrow at 2 p.m.

At least for now, all except Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg have to regard the forthcoming competition with the old do-or-die label. For the Knights and Falcons, a setback would surely dim their chances of remaining in the chase for divisional honors.

For the Cougars and Mustangs, the golden opportunity is ripe for escaping the cellar.

Elk Grove, meanwhile, the seventh member of the circuit, takes a bye and will journey to Chicago Saturday to take on Gordon Tech. No 'must' here, unless the Grenadiers want to move one step closer to their first losing season in five years.

The big attention, at any rate, will be focused this evening on the Prospect field where coach Bill Gourley's surprising Hawks invade. Impressive winners of three straight games since a heartbreaking opening day loss to Palatine, Hoffman will be showcasing their area-pacing quarterback Wayne Jackson and an overall offense that has scored 17 touchdowns in four games.

"They have a great attack," Knight Coach Dave Keefe offered. "This Jackson does a fine job of moving it but he isn't all they have. Hoffman has excellent receivers and a solid running game . . . the run, in fact, just sets up Jackson for the big ones."

Keefe realizes the importance riding with this one and while he shows great concern for the opposition, his chief hope is that the Knights will be healthy when they face the Hawks.

Last week his bruising back Keith Mason sat on the sidelines, victim of a pulled leg muscle. There were three other starters out of action including Tim Twitchell, the league's leader in reception yardage average, who has missed two games with a bruised thigh. Scott Vigor played less than half the game against Conant.

Gourley is aware of the injuries that plagued Prospect in the Cougar game but knows what their potential is too. "They came up with a great second half performance last week and if they're healthy now, we'll have our hands full," he said.

The Hawk mentor is banking on his squad's quickness to negate some of that healthy advantage in size the Knights will serve up. "They really come at you, especially on offense. We'll have to keep moving continuously on defense to contain them. Mike Batina, our defensive coach, has done an excellent job of getting 11 kids working together and he's as aware as I am of the task at hand."

The Prospect-Hoffman Estates game will be aired over WWMM-FM beginning at 8 p.m.

Also getting underway at 8:00 tonight will be a visit by Meadows to the Conant field. Conant has not won a game for their new coach John Ayres, but they can take some degree of heart from the fact that the Mustangs have also fallen on some hard times, as dropping their last three outings.

Rolling Meadows coach Angie Barro sized up the situation:

"Conant looked good up until halftime last week. If they can put four quarters together like that we'll have problems. On defense they give you a lot of different fronts to confuse your blocking schemes."

Barro's squad is another one in the league relying more on quickness than size this year but they'll be outdone in one respect by the sparkplug in the Cougar attack — Steve Stompanato, at 5-1 and 135 the smallest

WM radio at Prospect tonight

WWMM-FM (92.7) journeys to Prospect High School tonight to cover the Mid-Suburban League South football battle between the host Knights and Hoffman Estates.

Prospect will bring a 1-1 South mark and 2-2 overall standard into the important league action. Hoffman Estates stands 2-0 in the South and 3-1 overall in its first year of varsity football competition.

Bob Houghton of WM radio will call the play-by-play and Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk will give the color commentary for the football action starting at 8 p.m. The kickoff for the varsity game always is dictated by the length of the preliminary.

Consensus All-America...a very special distinction

It's quiz time, college football fans, on this first Friday of October.

No prizes at stake. Just pride.

The state that has produced the most major-college consensus All-America football players from its high school ranks over the past 50 years is . . .

No, it isn't Rhode Island.

You're wrong if you said Alaska.

Illinois? Loyalty gets you nowhere this time, but that's not a bad guess.

The winner is . . . California, by a 72 to 69 margin over Texas. And over that half-century, 85 per cent of California's consensus All-Americas-to-be stayed in their home state to play for top college coaches from Howard Joones to Red Sanders to John McKay.

This exciting (?) information comes directly from the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. and although it's not a story that will stop the presses, there are some interesting facts in the survey.

California enjoys an edge of a 21-11 pre-1940 bulge over Texas. In fact, it wasn't until Southwest Conference teams popularized the wide-open passing game by beating teams in the East and Midwest that Texans joined the All-America parade.

Then came three All-America passers in four years who were products of Texas high schools — SMU's Bobby Wilson (from Corsicana) in 1935, TCU's Sammy Baugh (Sweetwater) in 1936 and TCU's Davey O'Brien (Dallas) in 1938.

Ohio and Pennsylvania rank 3-4 in the list and Illinois (we're loyal to you) stands fifth, starting with Red Grange from Wheaton and led by talent-rich Chicago.

The top six are California with 72, Texas (69), Ohio (60), Pennsylvania (51), Illinois (35) and Michigan (32). Alabama (27), New York (18), Oklahoma (17) and Minnesota (16) round out the top 10.

Bob Frisk
Sports Editor

Not surprisingly, every one of the top six states in consensus All-Americas is rich in population, but they're even richer in football tradition and talent. The top six have produced 53 per cent (319 of 606) of the consensus AAs with only 36 per cent of the population.

It's interesting to examine the breakdown in Illinois where 35 consensus All-Americas played their high school football. Chicago has produced 15 and Evanston and Oak Park two each. The towns producing one All-America player are Argo, Bloomington, Chebanse, Glen Ellyn, Harvey, Joliet, Mattoon, Morris, Oliver (Marshall), Pana, Park Ridge, Rockford, West Frankfort, Wheaton, Wilmette and Winnetka.

No, the Herald area is not represented because the Herald area never has produced a consensus All-America football player at a major-college level.

Bill Zadel (Prospect High and Army) and Steve Ostermann (St. Viator and Washington State) did rank high nationally but didn't have a "consensus" label. The area has done better at a small college level with two names coming to mind as Little All-Americans — Al Eck (Palatine) and George Bork (Arlington), both from Northern Illinois University.

There's also a check of the winningest major-college teams of the past 50 years that shows a strong home-state flavor in consensus All-Americas helps, but isn't essential.

You have Southern California, with 29 of its 30 AAs from California; the University of Texas, with all 16 from Texas; Ohio State, with 18 of 22 from Ohio; Alabama, 16 of 21 and Penn State 10 of 11.

Tennessee, winningest team in terms of regular-season games from 1925 through 1974, has had only six home-staters in 17 make All-America with four from bordering states; and Notre Dame, winningest team of the 50 years including bowls, got its AAs from 19 states. However, Notre Dame — like Army, Navy, Air Force — is essentially a national school.

The survey also considered the old chicken-egg argument. Do All-Americas make winning teams or do winning teams make All-Americas? You obviously can make a strong case each way, and such factors as geography, exposure and tradition cannot be overlooked.

It's hard to beat winning. The eight teams with the most victories over the past 50 years — Tennessee, Alabama, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Oklahoma, USC, Texas and Michigan — all rank at least tied for ninth or better in consensus All-America players over the past half century.

The 50-year list from the NCAA is a must for trivia experts. For example, several pairs of brothers have made consensus All-America through the years, but only one family has produced three — the Wisterts of Chicago. All three were tackles and all three made consensus All-American at Michigan — Francis Wistert in '33, Albert in '42 and Alvin twice — in '48 and '49.

But my favorite bit of triva from this report concerns the home towns of the All-America selections. What consensus All-America player comes from the smallest town in the United States? Now don't say, who cares.

You have three choices:

(1) If you mean the smallest incorporated town (giving it an official U.S. Census figure), he's Walker Gillette (Richmond end 1969) from Carpon, Va., population 314.

(2) If you mean the smallest unincorporated towns with a post office, he's Ernie Jackson (Duke defensive back in '71), from Hopkins, S.C., population 80.

(3) If you include unincorporated towns with no post office, he's Ernie Blandin (Tulane tackle '41) of Keighley, Kan., with a current population of THREE, according to the local historian, Walter Woods of Leon, Kan., where Blandin attended high school.

"Keighley had about 1,500 people around the turn of the century when there was an oil boom," Woods says. "It was about 12 when Ernie lived there. There's still a sign on the highway, but the filling station just closed, the train depot is closed and the school is closed, except when they use it for a township meeting. Ernie used to drive to school in a model-T."

OK, Herald area, there's your challenge. A town of 12 (now THREE) can produce a consensus All-America. Is there one in our future?

Pirates to host Cards in feature

by KEITH REINHARD

The Mid-Suburban North is seeing red this weekend.

It isn't a case of everyone in the division being mad at each other. The spotlight game is simply one pitting the two crimson-bannered clubs — Arlington and Palatine — against one another.

Wheeling will be heading to Hersey while Fremd plays host to Buffalo Grove to round out the divisional slate this weekend. Both of these games get underway at 8:00 tonight.

The Cardinals and Pirates face off Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Palatine den. It deserves the most attention because the verdict is regarded as up for grabs. On the other hand both the Vikings and Wildcats have underdog labels to surmount in their quest for victory.

"Underdog is putting it mildly," sighed Wheeling coach Gerry Clinnin of his forthcoming appointment in Huskyland. "I feel more like Daniel on his way to the lion's den."

Clinnin would have good reason to feel that way even though he's new to the MSL coaching scene. The log shows that the Wildcats have never bettered Hersey on the gridiron going back to 1969 when the rivalry was initiated.

"We feel we can give a better accounting of ourselves this time around but we're realistic," Clinnin added. "Hersey has a strong football tradition and they've shown every indication of maintaining it this year."

Fremd has an uphill battle on its hands as it tries to keep a brief winning streak alive. They toppled Wheeling last Friday to end a long victory drought.

"It was a whole mass of emotions last week," recalled Vike mentor Joe Samojedny, "Finding out what it's like to win again has put a lot more fun in it for all of us and I believe it will make us an improved ball club."

Bison pilot Grant Blaney agrees with that assessment, pointing out, "Fremd's victory had to bolster their confidence. They've been getting better every game this season and we're certainly not going to take them lightly . . . we just can't afford to."

Buffalo Grove, like Fremd, is coming off a win this weekend. The triumph was at the expense of Palatine and put coach Arv Herstedt's outfit in a position of needing to bounce back Saturday or face the possibility of being an also-ran.

Thickening the plot at Ost Field Saturday, of course, is the fact that their foe, the Cards, is in exactly the same boat. Both are excellent teams. Both opened the '75 campaign by winning their first three contests.

"NEITHER we nor Palatine can afford to lose again," observed Haines, adding, "I would say that the loser of our game will be eliminated."

This (Jim) Popp is probably the best back we've faced . . . he's not very big but he hits and spins and is difficult to bring down. BOBBY CHARGES out of Chicago. The San Diego Chargers have gained possession of former Bear signal-caller Bobby Douglass. He's shown here hoofing it out of the Chicago training camp at Lake Forest for the last time.

Douglass says good-bye...

Quarterback Bobby Douglass went to the San Diego Chargers on waivers Thursday. The Chicago Bears received a $100 waiver price for the player who had been expected to lead them into contention in the National Football League.

Douglass said the Chargers would pick up his contract for the balance of this season and would have an option on his services for next year.

"I guess I want to say I only wish the people of Chicago would have gotten to know me better as a human being," Douglass said. "I'm not that bitter about the way this was handled."

Douglas, who gave way to Gary Huff as the Bears' No. 1 quarterback last Sunday, precipitated his transfer when he had his attorney, Herb Ruddy, talk with Bears' General Manager Jim Finks about Douglass' future.

That conference occurred Tuesday. Wednesday morning, Douglass was notified he had been placed on waivers.

"I never was immune to the boos in Chicago," he said. "But certainly they disturbed me at times. What the people apparently don't know is that I tried as hard as anyone to win.

"I would like to question why some reporters and people showed so much personal hatred towards me. I certainly hate to leave and I think my future is going to be good."

...and Beathard says hello

Veteran quarterback Pete Beathard will be given a 24-hour tryout with the Chicago Bears at their Lake Forest training camp Friday, Bears General Manager Jim Finks said Thursday.

Finks announced the plan after meeting with the 33-year-old quarterback, formerly of the defunct Chicago Winds. The Bears placed quarterback Bobby Douglass on waivers Wednesday and Thursday he was picked up by the San Diego Chargers.

Head Coach Jack Pardee termed this afternoon's workout intense as his team continued preparation for its trip to Minnesota to meet the unbeaten Vikings.

The Bears ended their workout during an 11-on-11 session when running back Walter Payton fell and clutched his right ankle. He was aided from the field and did not return for the final 15 minutes of the drills.

Harry waits after ax falls

Harry Caray, fired from his job as TV-radio announcer of Chicago White Sox games by club owner John Allyn on television Wednesday, planned to "wait and see" before he packs up his bags and leaves town.

"He may not have the club next year," Caray said. "In fact I think he'll have to sell it, and the new owners may want me."

Caray, whom Allyn criticized for "negative comment" about the Sox, said the trouble with the team was Allyn. Allyn, he said, was "stupid."

Caray also criticized Manager Chuck Tanner and General Manager Roland Hemond for the Sox' poor finish.

"There should be a strong man at the top of a major league ball club," he said, "and the Sox don't have any. I simply named names of players who didn't play well and they didn't like it.

"I said that Bill Melton, Ken Henderson and Wilbur Wood didn't help the team, and I'll add Tanner to that list."

Caray broadcast the St. Louis Cardinal games for more than 20 years and spent one year with the Oakland Athletics before joining the White Sox five years ago.

He was employed directly by the White Sox, reportedly for more than $100,000, and the team arranged its own TV-radio network.

Lakers just don't want Wilt

National Basketball Association Commissioner Larry O'Brien Thursday said if Wilt Chamberlain wants to return to the basketball court, it will have to be in the uniform of the Los Angeles Lakers.

Chamberlain, who has not played in two years, sat out his option year with the Lakers. He later coached the San Diego Conquitadors in the American Basketball Association. Under NBA rules, a player must play out his option year rather than sit it out as Chamberlain did.

It appears, however, that Laker owner Jack Kent Cooke is not interested in having Chamberlain play for the Lakers and the Lakers have warned Chamberlain to stay away from their camp or risk being "embarrassed."

The New York Knicks have shown interest in signing Chamberlain but have been unable to reach an agreement with Los Angeles. The Knicks have offered to buy the rights to Chamberlain but Cooke refuses to accept cash, wanting draft choices and players instead.

The pro football owners challenged the union at a congressional hearing Thursday to negotiate every player's individual salary, from the lowliest rookie to superstars such as Joe Namath.

Theodore Kheel, attorney for the NFL Management Council, also told a House Labor subcommittee that if the Rozelle Rule governing free agent compensation is struck down by the courts, "every player will become a Catfish Hunter" in seeking exorbitant long term contracts. Hunter signed a multi-million dollar contract with the New York Yankees after the American League ace was declared a free agent from his contract with the Oakland A's.

The Kentucky Colonels Thursday announced the purchase of 6-foot-7 forward Travis Grant from the San Diego Sails and the expected acquisition of center-forward Tom Ownes, a part of the trade that sent veteran Dan Issel to the Baltimore Claws.

running back in the circuit this fall.

"His size doesn't fool us," the Meadows mentor noted. "He's awfully quick and his rushing statistics speak for themselves."

Finally, Barro might have echoed the sentiments of Ayres when he summarized: "We were just out-horsed last week. We need this one to get our momentum going. It's a must game for us."

Saturday one team with their momentum already in high gear — Schaumburg — will take on the visiting Falcons and Forest View coach Fred Lussow is fully aware of the situation:

"What can I say about them? They're ranked second in one poll and fifth in another. They've given up three points all year on defense and are averaging over 30 a game on offense. We'll just have to take what they give us . . . if they shut off our running, we'll try passing."

Saxon coach Bob Ferguson isn't exactly taking the View lightly either. "We have the greatest respect for the guy who makes then run, (Jim) Petran. He's got a great arm but we feel that the key to a good pass defense is a good pass rush and we'll try to put a lot of pressure on him. We're certainly not going to just sit back and let him throw."

Petran, and Schaumburg's quarterback Russ Zonca, played major roles in the overtime thriller that Schaumburg won 43-37 the last time these two teams hooked up, in 1974.

Elk Grove will play at 8 p.m. Saturday at Hanson Stadium, Central and Fullerton in Chicago, against a club that has won three straight in impressive style since a 14-0 loss to St. Laurence in their opener.

Gordon Tech head man Tom Winiecki points out: Elk Grove is a much better team than their record (1-3 overall). They're an excellent offensive team and their fullback (Tim Roberts) has good speed and can break it outside anytime he wants to.

"I wasn't too happy to see them throw as much against Forest View," Winiecki added. "That gives them even more diversity."

The Volvo Warranty:

Palatine club plans tourney

Racquetball tournaments, group rates and a racquet demonstration are scheduled at newly opened Forest Grove Swim and Racquet Club, 1760 N. Hicks Rd., Palatine.

Steve Levenson, manager of the multi-million dollar family recreation facility, has announced several plans for reduced membership rates for groups, and the organization of several racquetball tournaments, including one on Oct. 20. The reduced rates will apply to six or more persons joining with a membership fee of $15 per person.

"Racquetball is easy to learn and with a few lessons almost anyone can be in control of their game," said Levenson. "It's fun, great exercise, inexpensive, and can be played by all age groups from 5 years old on up, with one to four players One of the great advantages of racquetball for tennis players is that it is so easy to learn, so you spend more time hitting balls rather than picking them up."

To introduce racquetball, Levenson will offer the special racquetball membership of $15 in groups of six for the season, which will include sauna, whirlpool, exercise room and other club events. There will also be special group lessons and demonstrations.

For more information, phone Levenson at Forest Grove, 991-4646.

Viking runners tip Palatine by 1

by ART MUGALIAN

By the narrowest of margins, Fremd's cross country team squeezed out a victory over Palatine, 27-28, Thursday at Union Oil, extending the Vikings' consecutive dual meet string to 48.

The stunning result pushed coach Ron Menely's Fremd squad to the top of the Mid-Suburban League North standings with a 4-0 record. The loss was the first for Palatine, now 3-1 in league duals.

The winner, as expected, was Fremd's John Filosa. The Viking junior outraced Palatine's Chuck Elliott to the chute in 14:33, although Filosa hung back for a good part of the meet in an attempt to pull in some teammates.

The course was slightly longer than Fremd's regular 2.75 miles.

Palatine's Dave Horwath was third, followed by sophomore Dan Inbody and Dan Tischler of Fremd, and Tony Vargas of Palatine.

The key man for the Vikes, though, was senior Dean Elleman, who finished seventh by bursting past Pirates Pete Kearns and Mike Monson in the final 100 yards. Elleman's effort was responsible for swinging four points.

"You can credit Elleman for this win," said an elated Menely after the race. "Don't tell him he doesn't have any leg speed or he'll believe you.

"We were very fortunate to win it," continued the Fremd coach. "I'm pleased that we won even though our No. 2 and 4 kids weren't where they should be."

Tischler and sophomore Bob Ratcliffe (who was 11th) fell below expectations.

"With 660 to go I saw Palatine had two, three, six, seven, eight or something," Menely said, "and I thought there it goes. But Elleman won it."

Inbody's fourth-place showing gave Menely another harrier to count on when conference-meet time rolls around in three weeks. Inbody, who has run on the sophomore level most of the year, will join the varsity again Saturday when the Vikings journey to Peoria to defend their Peoria Invitational title.

"For Pirate coach Joe Johnson and a large contingent of Palatine followers, the one-point loss was especially hard to take.

Johnson had made the decision on Tuesday to keep sophomore Tom Johnson out of the race rather than risk further injury to the runner's lame ankle. Johnson's absence more than likely cost the Pirates the meet.

"They lost but they still ran a good race," coach Johnson lamented.

In other meets Thursday, Hoffman Estates beat Conant, 19-42, Rolling Meadows edged Schaumburg, 25-30, Hersey nipped Buffalo Grove, 25-30, Forest View topped Elk Grove, 22-38, and Arlington beat Wheeling, 20-40.

Hoffman maintained its unbeaten record in the South with its fourth straight win, equalling idle Prospect's 4-0 mark.

The Hawks were running without Sam Cox and Ed Elliott and still managed to show a 31-second spread for their top seven harriers. Dave Porzel of Hoffman was the winner in 14:38, edging teammate Kevin Rooney by less than a second.

Conant sophomore Bill Baird was third in 14:40.

Schaumburg's Randy Lewis set a course record at the Saxons' Campanelli Park layout, running 2.85 miles in 14:28, but Rolling Meadows put three men in front of the next Schaumburg man to eke out the victory.

Tom Choice, Brian Germano, and Dave Gish were the trio of Mustang harriers who followed Lewis into the chute.

Another mark was established by Buffalo Grove's Joe Shields, a sophomore who flew around the Bison's Kemper course in 15:34, 10 seconds ahead of Craig Hanssen of Hersey. The Huskies won the meet as freshman Steve Johnson and teammates John Shorb and Rick Meyer finished fourth, fifth, and sixth.

Forest View's Darryl Robinson remained unbeaten in league duels and the Falcons kept their hopes alive for third place in the MSL South with a win over Elk Grove. The Grenadiers got a second-place effort from Joe Cullen and a fourth from John Fabbrini.

Wheeling sophomore Ben Sanchez won his first MSL duel, but Arlington put five runners ahead of the Wildcats' 2nd man to take an easy victory. The five Cardinals were John Kelley, Greg Beuder, Jim Lear, Mike Fischer, and Tom Tremblay. Lear and Tremblay are sophomores.

Lions travel to Holy Cross; defense shines

by MIKE KLEIN

St. Viator quarterback Jim Thompson was bumped and bruised so badly that he couldn't practice full speed for three weeks, Lions' head coach Jim revealed Thursday morning.

"There was a period of three weeks after the Forest View game where Thompson couldn't perform in practice," Lyne said. "I contend that messes up your entire backfield."

As the Lions prepare for their weekend encounter at Holy Cross (2 p.m., Sunday), Lyne still talks in terms of being "disappointed, frustrated."

St. Viator is 1-1 in East Suburban Catholic games and 2-2 overall, about two notches below what they had expected.

But flying on the wings of superb defense, this could be the week that something spectacular finally happens.

"We might be ready to play a really good ballgame, Lyne conceded.

There are still injuires. First string running back Mark Bonucchi and reserve back Tom Joyce are out with shoulder separations.

Wide receiver Jim Kane has pulled hamstring muscles and defensive end Rick Kaiser is sidelined with blood accumulation in one hand.

Thus, St. Viator is settled upon a backfield of Jack Gracheck and John Gillen who got his first start there last weekend in a 21-0 victory over Notre Dame.

"Once you can settle on a bunch of kids and work with them, you'll be in good shape," Lyne said. "We haven't been able to do that yet."

It's still true that no tested reserves are available in the offensive backfields. If Gillen or Gracheck go down, the Lions must use either of two linebackers, Tom Murray or Tim Horvath.

Defensive coordinator Wayne Fiedler said the Lions will show expanded variations of their four-linebacker look which held Marist to six points and Notre Dame none.

The Lions kept Marist and Notre Dame to an eight-quarter total of 10 first downs. Scott Zettek is the Lions' runaway tackles leader with 29 solos and 25 assists.

Disputed plays need explanation

Dear Sir:

I have a complaint against the P.A. system at Arlington High School. The last two years I attended the games between Hersey and Arlington, and most of the time on the Hersey side I can't hear the announcer.

I also have a suggestion that on disputed plays the announcer and the Herald should explain the play. Hersey punted to Arlington and on the Arlington 40-yard line the ball bounced out of (Tom) North's hands into (Joe) Pusatera's hands and he ran for a touchdown and it was called back. From where I was sitting, it was a touchdown. Until now I don't know why it was called back. Please try and explain this play to the audience at the game, and also it should be printed in your paper. I am confused and can't wait until you tell us what happened.

Joseph Good
Arlington Heights

EDITOR'S NOTE: The play in question hinges on the difference between a fumble and a muff. A fumble can be advanced, but a muff cannot. North never had possession of the punt — it merely bounced out of his hands. Therefore, Pusatera could not advance the ball, though Hersey took possession at the point Pusatera recovered.

HOFFMAN WASN'T LUCKY

Dear Sir:

According to your article (Sept. 20) about the Hoffman-Forest View game, I think it was pretty unfair. Hoffman is always looked at as the "baby school" because we are new. We always look like we won on luck. Everyone always predicts that Hoffman will lose. For being a new school, I think we are pretty good. All you mention is how Hoffman had a dramatic win over Forest View . . .

NORTHERN DESERVES PRAISE

Dear Mike Klein,

Your prediction of Northwestern (University's football team) to win over Northern Illinois was true, but not the pushover that your article (Sept. 17) would lead people to believe.

Am glad that I went to the game and saw the Northern Illinois team give 100 per cent plus.

Of course, on paper Northwestern was the winner — but were they really?

You gave credit to Northwestern for a win before they played. Now, I would like to see you give the same to the Huskies — even if only a line or two — because they really did show a great game to the fans and to themselves.

Thank you.

MEL SAYS THANKS

Fans Forum:

I would like to take this opportunity to express my appreciation to the many people involved in the 15th annual Paddock Tennis Tournament. For a project of this size, "involved" may be somewhat of an understatement.

As it has been in recent years, the Labor Day contest has been cosponsored by the Arlington Tennis Club, Inc. and Paddock Publications. The Arlington Tennis Club people who gave of their time over the Labor Day weekend are the real patrons of the game. There are so many of them who helped that I hesitate to name any of them for fear of missing just one. Without them, there would be no successful tourney.

River Trails Tennis Center — with Nelson Campbell and Ann Workman —against hosted indoor matches and rescued us from the inclement weather as they have done almost every year.

In summary, my thanks to Paddock, to the Arlington Tennis Club, to the schools that allow us to use their courts, to River Trails, and most of all to each and every participant for entering. They are the ones who make this tourney the largest and most successful in the state.

Thank you and see you next year.

Prospect to host archery invite

Since Glenbrook North isn't hosting its annual archery invitational this season, Prospect High School will.

Starting at 9 a.m. Saturday, Coach Sandy Pifer sand her Knight archers will play host to nine schools — Arlington, Conant, Fremd, Forest View, Sacred Heart of Mary, Glenbard North, Glenbrook North, Ridgewood and Maine West.

For the first time ever, the girls will be shooting from 40 yards as well as 30 and 20.

Glenbrook North won its own invite last year. At that third annual meet, Arlington finished second and Maine West third. Seventeen teams took part last year.

CBS-TV to cover Western Open

Through the "eyes" of the CBS-TV network, there will be expanded TV coverage of the Western Open next summer, it was announced by Mike McDermott, general chairman for the sponsoring Western Golf Association.

The final two rounds on Saturday and Sunday (June 26-27) of play at Butler National Golf Club will be covered, possibly as much as two hours each day. For the first time at the Western Open, the action will be picked up as early as the 13th hole on Channel 2, WBBM-TV.

To cover the six finishing holes at Butler National, CBS will use 16 cameras, including a special snorkel unit, two portable cranes, five fork lift vehicles and eight other specially constructed towers, ranging any where in height from five to 25-feet high.

The announcing staff will include pro golfer Ken Venturi, Jack Whittaker and Pat Summerall.

Lions travel to Holy Cross; defense shines

by MIKE KLEIN

St. Viator quarterback Jim Thompson was bumped and bruised so badly that he couldn't practice full speed for three weeks, Lions' head coach Jim revealed Thursday morning.

"There was a period of three weeks after the Forest View game where Thompson couldn't perform in practice," Lyne said. "I contend that messes up your entire backfield."

As the Lions prepare for their weekend encounter at Holy Cross (2 p.m., Sunday), Lyne still talks in terms of being "disappointed, frustrated."

St. Viator is 1-1 in East Suburban Catholic games and 2-2 overall, about two notches below what they had expected.

But flying on the wings of superb defense, this could be the week that something spectacular finally happens.

"We might be ready to play a really good ballgame, Lyne conceded.

There are still injuires. First string running back Mark Bonucchi and reserve back Tom Joyce are out with shoulder separations.

Wide receiver Jim Kane has pulled hamstring muscles and defensive end Rick Kaiser is sidelined with blood accumulation in one hand.

Thus, St. Viator is settled upon a backfield of Jack Gracheck and John Gillen who got his first start there last weekend in a 21-0 victory over Notre Dame.

"Once you can settle on a bunch of kids and work with them, you'll be in good shape," Lyne said. "We haven't been able to do that yet."

It's still true that no tested reserves are available in the offensive backfields. If Gillen or Gracheck go down, the Lions must use either of two linebackers, Tom Murray or Tim Horvath.

Defensive coordinator Wayne Fiedler said the Lions will show expanded variations of their four-linebacker look which held Marist to six points and Notre Dame none.

The Lions kept Marist and Notre Dame to an eight-quarter total of 10 first downs. Scott Zettek is the Lions' runaway tackles leader with 29 solos and 25 assists.

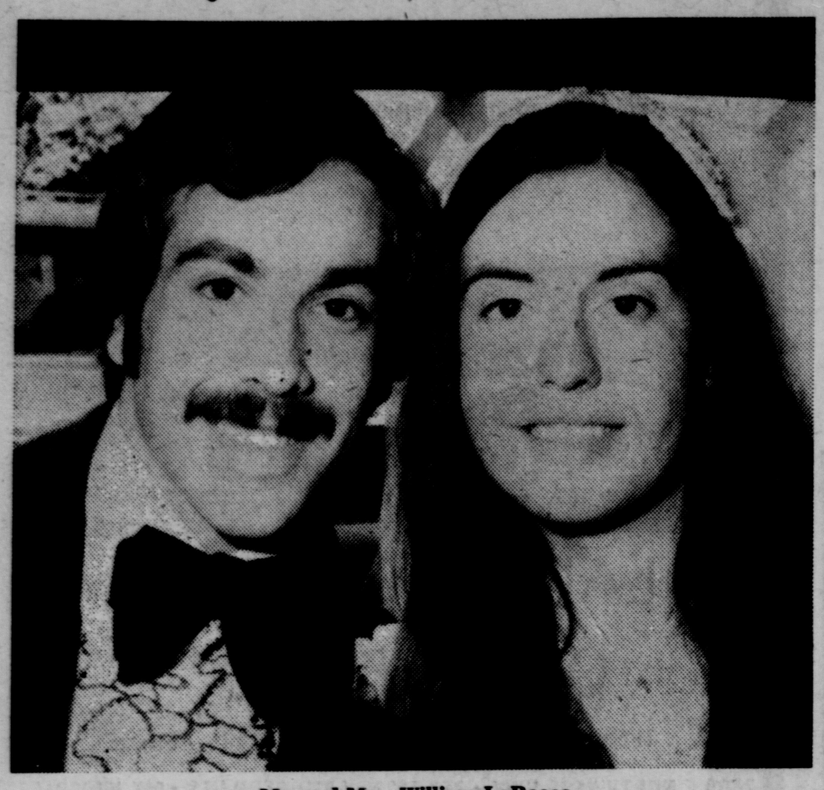
Family attends couple



Mr. and Mrs. William LaRocca

Members of the family were predominant in the wedding party and ceremony of Leslie Horwath, daughter of the John A. Horwaths of Palatine, and William LaRocca, son of Mrs. Michael LaRocca, Berkeley, Ill., and the late Mr. LaRocca.

The Sept. 6 ceremony took place at 10:30 a.m. in St. Theresa Catholic Church, Palatine.

For her wedding Leslie chose an ivory satin gown trimmed in lace and seed pearls. Her long veil was also trimmed in lace and was held in place with a Juliet cap of lace and pearls. She carried a bouquet of ivory and red roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

HER SISTER, LuAnn, was maid of honor; two other sisters Janet and Peggy, and the groom's sister, Marilyn, were bridesmaids. Amy LaChance, the bride's 6-year-old cousin from Arlington, Tex., served as junior bridesmaid. Kerrie Green, her 4-year-old cousin from Effingham, Ill., was flower girl.

The attendants all wore ivory gowns flocked in red flowers and picture hats with red ribbons. Their flowers were red carnations, white pompons and baby's breath.

Gregory Green, 5, the bride's cousin from Effington, served as ring bearer. Best man was Michael LaRocca, the groom's brother, and groomsmen were David and Steven Horwath, the bride's brothers, and Tom Koneval, Evanston. Junior usher was Tom LaRocca, 9, the groom's brother.

ALSO IN THE wedding service, the bride's cousins, Scott and Ricky LaChance, Arlington, Tex., were altar boys and the couple's uncles, Dan LaRocca and Gene LaChance, were readers during the mass.

A luncheon reception followed at Nordic Hills Country Club, Itasca, for 185 guests.

Leslie is a '71 graduate of Palatine High School and a '75 graduate of Northwestern University. She is now enrolled at Kent College of Law, Chicago. William is a '75 graduate of Northwestern, where the couple met, and is employed at Gould, Inc., Rolling Meadows. They are living in Oak Park.

Diane Brooks weds Sept. 6 in Los Angeles

Mrs. Patrick R. Dixon

Diane Brooks, daughter of former Mount Prospect residents, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Brooks of Pleasant Hill, Calif., was married in Los Angeles Sept. 6 to Patrick R. Dixon, son of the Richard Dixons of Glendale, Calif.

The afternoon nuptials took place in Westwood United Methodist Church.

Six of Diane's Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority sisters served as bridesmaids and her sister, Mrs. John Leece, Costa Mesa, Calif., was matron of honor. Groomsmen were all Kappa Alpha fraternity brothers.

A reception followed in the Hotel Bel Air's Swan Lake Terrace. The couple then left for a honeymoon in Hawaii.

Both Diane and Patrick are graduates of the University of Southern California and are employed in Los Angeles. Diane is an assistant manager in the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, and Patrick is an attorney with the local U. S. Attorney's Office.

Detergent with ammonia good for all but pearls

Dear Dorothy: Other people must also have the problem of wanting to clean rings and not being sure how to do it properly. Can't you give all of us some suggestions? — June Page

Well, while we're at it, let's cover all kinds of jewelry. Most of it can be washed with a mild solution with a few drops of ammonia in it. However, this is absolutely NOT the case for pearls. While there is a regular pearl cleaner, it's okay to wipe them off with a damp cloth and wipe them dry immediately. I've heard that toothpaste with a soft brush does a good job on charm bracelets. And any good silver polish will also polish gold. Most good jewelers have cleaners for every kind of jewelry — a different cleaner even for garnets. Diamonds have the most specific treatment. Swish in the mild suds, scrub gently with a delicate brush (like an eyebrow brush) and for safety's sake put the ring in a small strainer and rinse under warm running water. Pat dry with a soft, lintless cloth.

Dear Dorothy: When I peel potatoes, I automatically drop them into water so they won't darken. A friend tells me this automatically crosses out any advantage of vitamins and minerals — that they leach out into the water. Is this true? — Mrs. Paul G. Marbut

A few minutes of soaking (10 to 15 minutes) won't harm a thing. It's long soaking that draws out the nutrients, especially vitamin C. All of us used to do the water bit regularly, but we cut down the time sharply when we learned what happens with long soaking.

Dear Dorothy: Just moved into an apartment which has a brand-new stainless steel sink. How does one keep it this way? — Jan Margitay Never use anything abrasive. Clean with a cloth barely dampened with rubbing alcohol or mineral oil, and wipe dry with a soft cloth.

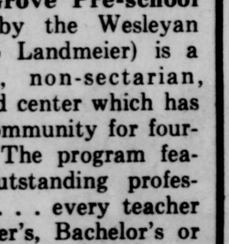
"Spend, spend" has depleted the woodpile



By Donald F. Morton, President
Arlington Heights Federal Savings & Loan Assn.

We in the savings and loan industry felt almost guilty throughout the post-war years as we urged thrift while many economists preached that the secret of this country's economic success was spending. "Spend more," they cried, "and keep industry's wheels rolling."

Now we are learning that industry's wheels cannot go faster to meet consumer demands simply because it can't get the capital for investment in plant development.

Reminds us of the backwoods fellow who used up the stockpile of wood his father had laboriously cut — until he finally ran out and one winter froze to death. He hadn't replenished it.

It comes as a shock to learn that this country has one of the lowest percentages of investment in capital development in the industrialized world. We trail even such economically distressed nations as Italy and Britain and are far behind Japan, whose people are saving over 23 per cent of all personal disposable income, as compared with only 10 per cent for the U.S.

Yet some economists continue to bellow, "Spend, spend, spend!" to save the economy. It's like raiding the diminishing woodpile to take care of tonight without regard for tomorrow.

Enormous outlays will be required to provide for such national needs as alternative sources of energy, modernizing and expanding manufacturing and industrial plants, rebuilding decaying cities, and meeting untold other capital demands. Now Washington is getting concerned. Treasury Secretary William Simon has warned that the U.S. faces "serious risks" — social as well as economic — if it does not increase its rate of capital investment. Senator Russell Long has declared that the coming capital shortage could be "as severe as anything we have had in the economic history of the country."

It is difficult for the consumer to do an about-face after being assured for many years that the easy and self-satisfying habit of spending now and paying later was patriotic. But he's going to have to — or face the consequences of a depleted woodpile.

Royal maile leis given to couple at reception

Maile leis, signifying eternal growing devotion and traditionally reserved for royal Hawaiian weddings, were presented to the new Mr. and Mrs. David C. Mitchell at their Sept. 6 wedding reception.

The former Kristin Lynn Rohm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Rohm, Arlington Heights, chose a Victorian-style gown of crystal debut trimmed in Venise lace for her wedding in Trinity United Methodist Church, Denver, Colo.

Mrs. David C. Mitchell

A headpiece of matching lace held her chapel-length mantilla veil. A gold brooch that belonged to Kristin's great-great-grandmother and a white Bible belonging to her mother topped with white roses and baby's breath completed her bridal attire.

BECKY ROHM preceded her sister down the aisle as maid of honor. Bridesmaids, wearing apricot gowns with matching hooded jackets, were Lori Vonfeldt, Laramie, Wyo., and Sally Dale, Louviers, Colo. They carried bouquets of apricot carnations and tea roses.

Best man for David, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Mitchell of Steamboat Springs, Colo., was his brother, Jim. Gregg Rohm, the bride's brother, and Douglas Curry, Dillion, Colo., seated the 100 guests.

Following the reception at the Cosmopolitan Hotel, Denver, the newlyweds honeymooned for 10 days in Vail and Aspen. They will be at home in Greeley where both are students at the University of Northern Colorado. Here's how to announce engagement in Herald

Paddock Suburban Living department is often called by those seeking information on submitting announcements for publication. We print the following for the reader's information and help.

The announcement of an engagement is always made by the parents of the engaged girl, who may either fill out an engagement form at our office or submit their own information along with a wallet sized picture of the bride-to-be.

If a wallet sized photograph is not available, a larger one can be used.

Bring or mail picture and copy to The Herald office in Arlington Heights or mail to Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill., 60006.

Parents not using one of our forms may either write or type the information. If the announcement is submitted in hand-writing we ask that all names be printed to avoid errors. We also request that a phone number accompany the signature at the bottom of the announcement.

A glossy picture is preferable although a dull finish is acceptable. Color photos are used at the discretion of the editors depending on contrast and depth of color.

There is no charge for engagement pictures and announcements. Usually they will be printed within a week after reaching our office.

All announcements must be in our office at least six weeks before the wedding date.

Royal maile leis given to couple at reception

Maile leis, signifying eternal growing devotion and traditionally reserved for royal Hawaiian weddings, were presented to the new Mr. and Mrs. David C. Mitchell at their Sept. 6 wedding reception.

The former Kristin Lynn Rohm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Rohm, Arlington Heights, chose a Victorian-style gown of crystal debut trimmed in Venise lace for her wedding in Trinity United Methodist Church, Denver, Colo.

Mrs. David C. Mitchell

A headpiece of matching lace held her chapel-length mantilla veil. A gold brooch that belonged to Kristin's great-great-grandmother and a white Bible belonging to her mother topped with white roses and baby's breath completed her bridal attire.

BECKY ROHM preceded her sister down the aisle as maid of honor. Bridesmaids, wearing apricot gowns with matching hooded jackets, were Lori Vonfeldt, Laramie, Wyo., and Sally Dale, Louviers, Colo. They carried bouquets of apricot carnations and tea roses.

Best man for David, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Mitchell of Steamboat Springs, Colo., was his brother, Jim. Gregg Rohm, the bride's brother, and Douglas Curry, Dillion, Colo., seated the 100 guests.

Following the reception at the Cosmopolitan Hotel, Denver, the newlyweds honeymooned for 10 days in Vail and Aspen. They will be at home in Greeley where both are students at the University of Northern Colorado. Kristin is a junior majoring in deaf and elementary education and is affiliated with Sigma Kappa Sorority. She graduated from Prospect High School in 1973. David is a senior majoring in history.

Low blood sugar can be real problem

I have been diagnosed by two different doctors as having hypoglycemia. Both ran a six-hour glucose test to confirm the diagnosis. I was placed on a high protein diet, but no vitamins.

I started to black out after being on a high protein diet for two years and went to a medical clinic. The doctor in charge of metabolism stated there is no such thing as low blood sugar (functional) and that everyone has low blood sugar readings in the 50's and 60's on a glucose test.

He stated the U. S. was the only country that uses this diagnosis, that there is no proof to back up such a diagnosis and people with this diagnosis really need to see a psychiatrist, not to be put on a high protein diet.

All I know is that I still have my excessive fatigue and shakey spells along with the lightheaded feeling, and I sometimes pass out. I have held hard working positions for a woman but can no longer keep up because of this. I don't have any other problems that would lead one to think of a psychiatrist, and my husband agrees with this.

I'm 36, weigh 132, and work part time. If you were me what would you do? At this point I would certainly appreciate any help I can get to start enjoying life again.

It's true many people are diagnosed as "low blood sugar" who really have other problems, including anxiety. Whether that is the case with you or not I wouldn't know from the information at hand.

You may have anxieties that you don't recognize, these may lead to overbreathing and cause some of your symptoms. Or you could have low blood sugar.

Functional hypoglycemia is real. It is adequately discussed in leading texts of medicine (Beeson and McDermott 1975). One well-recognized cause is abnormal function of the pancreas that sometimes precedes development of diabetes. Hypoglycemia occurs in people who have had part of their stomach removed. And, in a mild form in some other people in a similar manner. These people often eat only carbohydrates (starches and sweets). The stomach empties rapidly in the absence of fat and protein, and the overload results in the reaction.

What should you do? First keep an open mind to the possibility that you have some anxieties that you have not come to grips with. Second, do a little experimenting.

Change your eating habits so that you eliminate all concentrated sweets — sugars, jams, etc. Include in your diet whole wheat bread and bulky vegetables such as salads that will slow the emptying of the stomach. Balance out your diet with lean protein such as lean round steak and fish. Avoid the sweet beverages (stop coffee and cigarettes entirely), sweet rolls, and include in your breakfast some protein, even steak if necessary, but don't eliminate the carbohydrates entirely — even for breakfast.

Then eat small meals and eat some of these foods listed above between meals. Also start a good exercise program for yourself, gradually. By providing a balanced diet and avoiding sweets, you may be surprised how much improvement you will have.

"This may be the one we take." Michael Considine and Gary Hedden listen carefully for the right sounds.

'Nashville' in suburbia

On a September Sunday afternoon when most other business offices were closed in Schaumburg's industrial park, owners of a new recording studio named Hedden West and a young country rock singer, Kathy Betts, were working together to gain recognition for themselves and ultimately one another.

It was a good chance for Kathy to record two songs that hopefully will help launch a singing career. For Gary Hedden, chief engineer, and his partner, Gavin McCammon, it was an opportunity to prove a recording studio in Schaumburg can equal anything in Nashville.

"Keep it simple . . . give it to me just one more time . . . is everyone feeling it O.K.?"

TECHNICALLY, artistically, musically, it was a successful afternoon. Two numbers, "Sad Songs and Waltzes Aren't Selling This Year" by Willie Nelson and "Snow Song," written by Kathy herself, were both recorded in a little over four hours.

"It was a super session," said Michael Considine of Rolling Meadows, Kathy's manager. "It was a smooth session with fine musicians who had a feel for what was going down."

Backing up Kathy were Billy Pierce on piano and Moog synthesizer; Ray Scott, John Wesley and Jeff Stephens on guitar; Tom Schoenfeld, percussionist; and Brian Murphy on bass.

Time is money and the only time a recording session pays off is when the musicians are already well rehearsed, disciplined, keyed to play.

Hedden and McCammon were also pleased. Their new 16-channel studio passed the test. It was a good taping. It was a relaxed session in warm and comfortable surroundings, exactly the kind of atmosphere they had envisioned for Hedden West.

THOUGH THERE are other recording studios located in Chicago, the bulk of them are downtown.

"They're inconvenient and hard to get to," said Considine. "Parking is a hassle. This was like recording in one's own living room. It can really make a difference."

"There's a great deal of talent in Chicago not being nurtured. There are many potential groups and singles. The only way for them to gain exposure is through a recording," said McCammon, who believes Hedden West is not only more accessible but able to undercut rates of studios in the city.

Yet, wherever the studio, the procedure remains the same. First the rhythm section is recorded. Musicians play together but record on separate tapes. The lyrics are added, and for "Sad Songs" a steel guitar, a triangle and drums were added, one at a time. Finally the Moog was taped to lend the sound of a cathedral pipe organ in the background.

ALL THE INDIVIDUAL tapes are combined into a two-channel master stereo tape which can be easily pressed into a record.

"Kathy's got what it takes," said Considine about his new discovery. "I think she can out-sing any girl right now in Nashville."

Having had no formal vocal training, Kathy, 27, who currently resides in Glenview, sang in school productions, for community theater, at weddings, birthdays and even for a while tried the industrial circuit shows. But three years ago she became disillusioned and gave it all up. She felt she would never have an opportunity for a singing career.

Mike changed all that. Not only did he immediately like her voice when he heard it, but he felt her wide range and depth were perfect for Country and Western. He trained her, taking her from Broadway hits into folk and finally country rock.

"I DIDN'T LIKE IT at first because I didn't have a feel for Country and Western. I was doing mostly Julie Andrews kind of stuff," said Kathy. "I like it a lot now. It's the only form of American music we have. There's a lot of pride in Country and Western.

Kathy has been under careful wrap. Considine is grooming her for the big-time concert engagements only. Club dates are out.

So far his plan has paid off. MCA in Nashville is considering signing Kathy to record under its label. A representative was at the recording session.

"I was really kinda nervous about that. We had been rehearsing for a couple of weeks. I knew the song. I was just worried about looking really professional."

Kathy won't let herself think about stardom. "I'm in limbo right now. I don't know whether to be excited or not. One just has to wait and see, and that's very hard to do."

COULD SHE one day be another Linda Ronstadt or Olivia Newton John?

Considine thinks so. "There hasn't been an explosive artist coming out of Nashville in four to five years. They need somebody like her," he said.

"It's too unbelievable to picture myself on a record cover even though I've been dreaming about it ever since I was a kid," laughed Kathy. "Every day I change, and it's not totally a dream anymore. I've taken one step up the ladder, but I still have a far way to go."

Kathy Betts recording "Sad Songs"

Fogerty album welcome dose of rollickin' rock

Playback
by Tom Von Malder

The first album in far too long from John Fogerty is a very welcome dose of bright, fun-filled rock in the Creedance Clearwater Revival tradition.

During the last half of the 1960s, CCR was one of the most creative, consistently entertaining bands and Fogerty was responsible for over 90 per cent of the group's songwriting and all its arrangements and production. In addition, he played fine, rollickin' guitar.

All of Fogerty's abundant rock virtues are found in his new solo album, "John Fogerty" (Asylum records), too, and it all makes one ask why he waited so long to get back to recording.

The answer is unknown at this time but the opening song, "Rockin' All Over the World," is a strong indication it was not loss of talent or musical timing. The song is fast becoming a smash single and has to be considered among the year's best rock singles. A frenetic rocker, it contains several elements from CCR's sound and Fogerty's strong vocal, which is as powerful and exciting as ever.

THROUGHOUT the album, the sounds are very clear, a sign of good mix and production. There are no musician credits listed, although a good guess would be that Fogerty played most of the basic stuff — perhaps aided by groups such as the Memphis horns and some orchestra or string ensemble.

"Almost Saturday Night" and "Where the River Flows" are two other new Fogerty tunes that are fine, even though they appear effortless. A horn-spiced "Sea Cruise" is the best of three oldies.

Creedance has been one group I have sorely missed in recent years. It is nice to have John Fogerty back, at least.

Other new releases include "Another Year" by Lee Sayer (Warner Bros.). This talented British songwriter's third album continues a streak of excellence, perhaps strengthened by new composer-partner Frank Farrell. (His other two, highly recommended albums are "Silverbird" and "Just a Boy" on Warner Bros.)

Changes this time for Sayer include a tendency to sound like Elton John on some of the slower songs ("Bedsitterland" and "I Will Not Stop Fighting" most obviously) and to have more traditional-based tunes (Farrell's influence). Still a steel drum sound brightens "Moonlighting" and "The Last Gig of Johnny B. Goode" has Chuck Berry-like guitar solos.

Other favorites are Sayer's bouncy "On the Old Dirt Road," the potential hit "Unlucky In Love" and the closing, "Another Year." In addition to good sounds, Sayer always gves you the added quality of well-written, thought-provoking songs. He proves meaningful lyrics do not have to mean dull songs.

"AL GREEN IS LOVE" by Al Green (Hi records). As the title suggets, this is an album of mostly low-key ballads and, despite some pretty sounds, the whole record ends up easily forgettable. Only "Love Ritual" with its African rhythms, horns and strings stands out of the malaise of sameness. "I Wish You Were Here" would have to be the best of the ballads, with the slick, pretty "L-O-V-E (Love)" not far behind.

"Honey" by the Ohio Players (Mercury). Veteran soul group comes up with a set as pleasing as its recent hit "Fire" album. There are bits of funk, but mostly smooth, mellow ballad-type material with long instrumentals.

The seven-man group often sounds like a small orchestra or big band through use of synthesizers and string ensembles. The music is not an imitation of that on "Fire" and should help broaden the group's appeal. The Ohio Players is one soul group, too, that is not aiming its music at the disco market and that proves refreshing. The title track is the album's best.

Soap operatic tale tells the making of a surgeon

The book stall

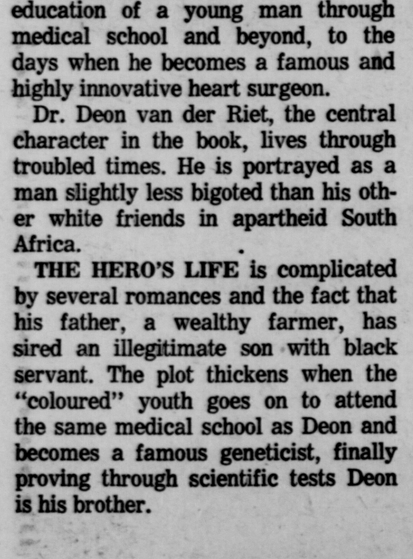
"THE UNWANTED"
BY DR. CHRISTIAN BARNARD
David McKay & Co., Inc., $9.95

If you accept the premise that noted heart surgeon Christian Barnard's novel, "The Unwanted," about a noted heart surgeon is at least semi-autobiographical, then it is a wonder that Barnard can still remove a splinter.

The highly soap-operatic tale does have its moments and several messages. Barnard and pen pal, Siegfried Stander, a South African journalist, weave an interesting story about the education of a young man through medical school and beyond, to the days when he becomes a famous and highly innovative heart surgeon.

Dr. Deon van der Riet, the central character in the book, lives through troubled times. He is portrayed as a man slightly less bigoted than his other white friends in apartheid South Africa.

THE HERO'S LIFE is complicated by several romances and the fact that his father, a wealthy farmer, has sired an illegitimate son with black servant. The plot thickens when the "coloured" youth goes on to attend the same medical school as Deon and becomes a famous geneticist, finally proving through scientific tests Deon is his brother.



Dr. Christian Barnard

Barnard and Stander portray the bigotry of South Africa quite well, even to the point of noting that critically ill black children cannot recover from a serious operation in the same intensive care unit as a white child.

"The Unwanted" is fraught with scenarios about Deon's life, which seems unsettled from the beginning. Deon lives through a love affair that starts in school, is interrupted when the woman, Elizabeth, takes up with the geneticist brother, but later returns to become his wife.

HE ALSO SEES another affair come back to haunt him when a woman he once loved comes back with a mongoloid son who has an inoperable heart defect.

Intermingled with the affairs is the death of the father and the arrest and imprisonment of his older brother for buying stolen diamonds (apparently a super no-no there because he gets stuck in the slammer for a long time).

And if the family and love-life problems are not enough, there is also a good bit of hospital politics which sees antagonism grow between Deon and the chief of surgery and hostilities develop between Deon and the jovial, old school chum who ascends from the role as trusted aide to an ally of the chief surgeon.

Despite the soap opera tendencies, the novel moves well. There is just enough action to let the reader travel quickly through the book. There is also enough medical jargon and that certain macabre brand of operating room humor and suspense to make the novel believable.

There is also a fairly surprising ending to the "Unwanted," but that cannot be revealed, can it?

THE BEAT INFLATION STRATEGY,
BY ROGER KLEIN AND WILLIAM WOLMAN
Simon & Schuster, $7.95

A former New York City bank executive and a Wall Street researcher have teamed to produce a rather complex plan of action for the consumer longing to beat inflation.

They anticipate that inflation will continue but at varying rates and offer dodges for the wise investor to follow in order to come out ahead. An interesting approach, if a little complicated for most.

by Tom Von Malder

The first album in far too long from John Fogerty is a very welcome dose of bright, fun-filled rock in the Creedance Clearwater Revival tradition.

During the last half of the 1960s, CCR was one of the most creative, consistently entertaining bands and Fogerty was responsible for over 90 per cent of the group's songwriting and all its arrangements and production. In addition, he played fine, rollickin' guitar.

All of Fogerty's abundant rock virtues are found in his new solo album, "John Fogerty" (Asylum records), too, and it all makes one ask why he waited so long to get back to recording.

The answer is unknown at this time but the opening song, "Rockin' All Over the World," is a strong indication it was not loss of talent or musical timing. The song is fast becoming a smash single and has to be considered among the year's best rock singles. A frenetic rocker, it contains several elements from CCR's sound and Fogerty's strong vocal, which is as powerful and exciting as ever.

THROUGHOUT the album, the sounds are very clear, a sign of good mix and production. There are no musician credits listed, although a good guess would be that Fogerty played most of the basic stuff — perhaps aided by groups such as the Memphis horns and some orchestra or string ensemble.

"Almost Saturday Night" and "Where the River Flows" are two other new Fogerty tunes that are fine, even though they appear effortless. A horn-spiced "Sea Cruise" is the best of three oldies.

Creedance has been one group I have sorely missed in recent years. It is nice to have John Fogerty back, at least.

Other new releases include "Another Year" by Lee Sayer (Warner Bros.). This talented British songwriter's third album continues a streak of excellence, perhaps strengthened by new composer-partner Frank Farrell. (His other two, highly recommended albums are "Silverbird" and "Just a Boy" on Warner Bros.)

Changes this time for Sayer include a tendency to sound like Elton John on some of the slower songs ("Bedsitterland" and "I Will Not Stop Fighting" most obviously) and to have more traditional-based tunes (Farrell's influence). Still a steel drum sound brightens "Moonlighting" and "The Last Gig of Johnny B. Goode" has Chuck Berry-like guitar solos.

Other favorites are Sayer's bouncy "On the Old Dirt Road," the potential hit "Unlucky In Love" and the closing, "Another Year." In addition to good sounds, Sayer always gves you the added quality of well-written, thought-provoking songs. He proves meaningful lyrics do not have to mean dull songs.

"AL GREEN IS LOVE" by Al Green (Hi records). As the title suggets, this is an album of mostly low-key ballads and, despite some pretty sounds, the whole record ends up easily forgettable. Only "Love Ritual" with its African rhythms, horns and strings stands out of the malaise of sameness. "I Wish You Were Here" would have to be the best of the ballads, with the slick, pretty "L-O-V-E (Love)" not far behind.

"Honey" by the Ohio Players (Mercury). Veteran soul group comes up with a set as pleasing as its recent hit "Fire" album. There are bits of funk, but mostly smooth, mellow ballad-type material with long instrumentals.

The seven-man group often sounds like a small orchestra or big band through use of synthesizers and string ensembles. The music is not an imitation of that on "Fire" and should help broaden the group's appeal. The Ohio Players is one soul group, too, that is not aiming its music at the disco market and that proves refreshing. The title track is the album's best.

Soap operatic tale tells the making of a surgeon

The book stall

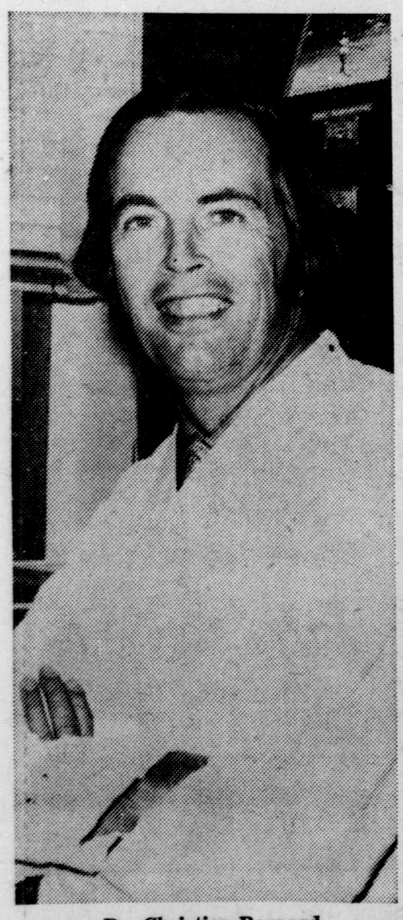
"THE UNWANTED"
BY DR. CHRISTIAN BARNARD
David McKay & Co., Inc., $9.95

If you accept the premise that noted heart surgeon Christian Barnard's novel, "The Unwanted," about a noted heart surgeon is at least semi-autobiographical, then it is a wonder that Barnard can still remove a splinter.

The highly soap-operatic tale does have its moments and several messages. Barnard and pen pal, Siegfried Stander, a South African journalist, weave an interesting story about the education of a young man through medical school and beyond, to the days when he becomes a famous and highly innovative heart surgeon.

Dr. Deon van der Riet, the central character in the book, lives through troubled times. He is portrayed as a man slightly less bigoted than his other white friends in apartheid South Africa.

THE HERO'S LIFE is complicated by several romances and the fact that his father, a wealthy farmer, has sired an illegitimate son with black servant. The plot thickens when the "coloured" youth goes on to attend the same medical school as Deon and becomes a famous geneticist, finally proving through scientific tests Deon is his brother.



Dr. Christian Barnard

Barnard and Stander portray the bigotry of South Africa quite well, even to the point of noting that critically ill black children cannot recover from a serious operation in the same intensive care unit as a white child.

"The Unwanted" is fraught with scenarios about Deon's life, which seems unsettled from the beginning. Deon lives through a love affair that starts in school, is interrupted when the woman, Elizabeth, takes up with the geneticist brother, but later returns to become his wife.

HE ALSO SEES another affair come back to haunt him when a woman he once loved comes back with a mongoloid son who has an inoperable heart defect.

Intermingled with the affairs is the death of the father and the arrest and imprisonment of his older brother for buying stolen diamonds (apparently a super no-no there because he gets stuck in the slammer for a long time).

And if the family and love-life problems are not enough, there is also a good bit of hospital politics which sees antagonism grow between Deon and the chief of surgery and hostilities develop between Deon and the jovial, old school chum who ascends from the role as trusted aide to an ally of the chief surgeon.

Despite the soap opera tendencies, the novel moves well. There is just enough action to let the reader travel quickly through the book. There is also enough medical jargon and that certain macabre brand of operating room humor and suspense to make the novel believable.

There is also a fairly surprising ending to the "Unwanted," but that cannot be revealed, can it?

THE BEAT INFLATION STRATEGY,
BY ROGER KLEIN AND WILLIAM WOLMAN
Simon & Schuster, $7.95

A former New York City bank executive and a Wall Street researcher have teamed to produce a rather complex plan of action for the consumer longing to beat inflation.

They anticipate that inflation will continue but at varying rates and offer dodges for the wise investor to follow in order to come out ahead. An interesting approach, if a little complicated for most.

A superb job on 'Twigs'

by STEVE FORSYTH
(A review)

"Twigs" is a sensitive, character portrayal of the bitter and sweet lives of simple people, and Village Theatre does a superb job with the anthology.

Playwright George Furth's work, interpreted last year on television, was handled well by director Judy Castaldi and the cast. "Twigs" is the first in a series of plays by American writers to be presented this year by Village Threatre.

In the first scene, Alice Olriksen as Emily does a near-perfect job as the busy, talkative widow who is confronted with an unlikely romance involving a moving man, played by Chuck Cell. His experience as a comic is apparent.

The sets, all basically the same, are almost ephemeral, outlined in white against a black backdrop. The set is there, but it isn't, and it never interferes with the smallest nuances of the characters. A simple set is essential in such a delicate work.

EACH SCENE IS amusing, though there are instances of human tragedy — arguments, squabbles — all very realistic.

The family portrayal continues in the second scene, and A. J. Reigler, as Emily's sister, Celia, is the star. Celia is a nervous, empty person who has only a few bright moments in her past, and she is seldom allowed to relive those.

Arnold Silver as the guest, Swede, makes a commendable entrance as he heads for the bathroom to relieve his car-sick stomach. He rejoins Celia's husband, Phil, played by Roy Quid, for a few moments of empty conversation. The two old buddies have nothing ahead of them so they continue to relive their Army pasts.

Bob Randolph and Karen Knudsen, as Lou and Dorothy in the third scene, perform well in the humorous sketches. The scene is worth watching just for a veiw of Randolph in his underwear, but the anniversary cake episode and deaf Uncle Ned, also played by Quid, are equally funny.

DORIS SILVER is wonderful as Ma in the last scene. She is cantankerous and hilarious as she bickers with Pa, played by Les Griffith. Ma fights off the threat of visits by her three daughters, Emily, Celia and Dorothy, as she jokes about her impending death and criticizes Pa for the usual — gambling, drinking and a bad job of mopping the floor.

The play is excellent for its sensitive characterization and its offering of Sue's gentle lessons. "Just as the twig is bent, the tree's inclined," read the Alexander Pope line that inspred the work.

Performances of "Twigs" are tonight and Saturday at Prospect High School.

Players set theater, art center debut

Despite a storage garage fire which destroyed their sets, lights, furniture, props and Touring Production equipment, The Players of Schaumburg are going ahead with the long-planned opening of their new Limelight Theatre and Arts Center on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 10 and 11.

Located at 1165 Tower Rd. in the Tower Plaza, one block northwest of Golf and Meacham Roads intersection in Schaumburg, Limelight's grand opening activities include an art exhibit, open house and registration for Arts Center workshops from 1 to 5 p.m. and a musical show and auction fund-raiser at 8 p.m.

"An Evening That's Entertainment" and "Who Will Buy?" the evening benefit, will feature several professional entertainers from the Chicago area, the Players' "Cabaret '75 Revue," and an auction of original paintings, handmade items, housewares and plants. The $4 admission includes champagne and hors d'oeuvres.

RESERVATIONS CAN be made by calling 885-2360 weekdays after 5 p.m. Proceeds will be used to reconstruct the "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown" sets which were destroyed in the fire and to replace the destroyed lights.

The art exhibition during the grand opening will feature the works of Schaumburg artists Lynn Witz and Raoul Johnson. Visitors will also be able to examine the theater library.

Registration for the instructional workshops will continue from the opening through Oct. 19. Classes include the art of magic, improvisational acting, puppetry for adults, voice, piano and ballet, jazz, square and belly dancing. Professionally trained personnel will do the teaching.

The 8-week sessions begin the week of Oct. 20. Further information is available at 885-2360 weekdays between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Child-rearing workshop set

A free workshop on rearing children in a changing society where custom is becoming a less reliable guide will be held Thursday, Oct. 9, in Mount Prospect Community Center.

The workshop, sponsored by Suburban Cook County Home Economics Program Council, will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. with Mrs. Lynda Harriman, a child and family specialist on the staff of the University of Illinois, as guest speaker.

Because seating is limited phone reservations are requested by calling 991-1160, the north side extension office in Rolling Meadows.

A superb job on 'Twigs'

by STEVE FORSYTH
(A review)

"Twigs" is a sensitive, character portrayal of the bitter and sweet lives of simple people, and Village Theatre does a superb job with the anthology.

Playwright George Furth's work, interpreted last year on television, was handled well by director Judy Castaldi and the cast. "Twigs" is the first in a series of plays by American writers to be presented this year by Village Threatre.

In the first scene, Alice Olriksen as Emily does a near-perfect job as the busy, talkative widow who is confronted with an unlikely romance involving a moving man, played by Chuck Cell. His experience as a comic is apparent.

The sets, all basically the same, are almost ephemeral, outlined in white against a black backdrop. The set is there, but it isn't, and it never interferes with the smallest nuances of the characters. A simple set is essential in such a delicate work.

EACH SCENE IS amusing, though there are instances of human tragedy — arguments, squabbles — all very realistic.

The family portrayal continues in the second scene, and A. J. Reigler, as Emily's sister, Celia, is the star. Celia is a nervous, empty person who has only a few bright moments in her past, and she is seldom allowed to relive those.

Arnold Silver as the guest, Swede, makes a commendable entrance as he heads for the bathroom to relieve his car-sick stomach. He rejoins Celia's husband, Phil, played by Roy Quid, for a few moments of empty conversation. The two old buddies have nothing ahead of them so they continue to relive their Army pasts.

Bob Randolph and Karen Knudsen, as Lou and Dorothy in the third scene, perform well in the humorous sketches. The scene is worth watching just for a veiw of Randolph in his underwear, but the anniversary cake episode and deaf Uncle Ned, also played by Quid, are equally funny.

DORIS SILVER is wonderful as Ma in the last scene. She is cantankerous and hilarious as she bickers with Pa, played by Les Griffith. Ma fights off the threat of visits by her three daughters, Emily, Celia and Dorothy, as she jokes about her impending death and criticizes Pa for the usual — gambling, drinking and a bad job of mopping the floor.

The play is excellent for its sensitive characterization and its offering of Sue's gentle lessons. "Just as the twig is bent, the tree's inclined," read the Alexander Pope line that inspred the work.

Performances of "Twigs" are tonight and Saturday at Prospect High School.

Players set theater, art center debut

Despite a storage garage fire which destroyed their sets, lights, furniture, props and Touring Production equipment, The Players of Schaumburg are going ahead with the long-planned opening of their new Limelight Theatre and Arts Center on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 10 and 11.

Located at 1165 Tower Rd. in the Tower Plaza, one block northwest of Golf and Meacham Roads intersection in Schaumburg, Limelight's grand opening activities include an art exhibit, open house and registration for Arts Center workshops from 1 to 5 p.m. and a musical show and auction fund-raiser at 8 p.m.

"An Evening That's Entertainment" and "Who Will Buy?" the evening benefit, will feature several professional entertainers from the Chicago area, the Players' "Cabaret '75 Revue," and an auction of original paintings, handmade items, housewares and plants. The $4 admission includes champagne and hors d'oeuvres.

RESERVATIONS CAN be made by calling 885-2360 weekdays after 5 p.m. Proceeds will be used to reconstruct the "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown" sets which were destroyed in the fire and to replace the destroyed lights.

The art exhibition during the grand opening will feature the works of Schaumburg artists Lynn Witz and Raoul Johnson. Visitors will also be able to examine the theater library.

Registration for the instructional workshops will continue from the opening through Oct. 19. Classes include the art of magic, improvisational acting, puppetry for adults, voice, piano and ballet, jazz, square and belly dancing. Professionally trained personnel will do the teaching.

The 8-week sessions begin the week of Oct. 20. Further information is available at 885-2360 weekdays between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Child-rearing workshop set

A free workshop on rearing children in a changing society where custom is becoming a less reliable guide will be held Thursday, Oct. 9, in Mount Prospect Community Center.

The workshop, sponsored by Suburban Cook County Home Economics Program Council, will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. with Mrs. Lynda Harriman, a child and family specialist on the staff of the University of Illinois, as guest speaker.

Because seating is limited phone reservations are requested by calling 991-1160, the north side extension office in Rolling Meadows.

THE GREATEST SHOW IN TOWN.

Lawry's The Prime Rib is not just another great restaurant. It's a show that starts the minute you sit down.

Your waitress arrives with a crisp salad on a bed of ice. As she dresses it, she spins it and tosses it while you watch.

Then the great, gleaming cart wheels up to your table. The Master Carver opens it up for you to see the magnificent prime ribs of Mid-western beef.

The slices are generous—thick or thin, rare or well-done, with bone or without. Then Lawry's famous spinach or buttered garden peas, baked Idaho or mashed potatoes, and Yorkshire pudding.

Prime ribs of beef is Lawry's only entree for dinner. Luncheon, from 11:30 to 2, offers a varied menu with other choices.

In all Chicago, you won't find a better evening. Certainly not one that will please your palate and your pocketbook so much.

Lawry's The Prime Rib, 100 East Ontario at Rush. (312) 787-5000 for reservations.

Dinner every evening. Lunch Monday through Friday.

Has Tom Jones still "got it?"

Ask any one of the dozen or so excited women ranging in age from 14 to 50 who received souvenirs, kisses or kind words from the Welsh sex symbol and singing star during his opening night show Monday at Mill Run.

Billed as a vocalist, with a fistful of best-sellers to prove it, Jones represents only one thing to most of these women — sex.

His dark, curly hair, tanned face and lithe body remain irresistible to women like those who braved the scorn of ushers and usherettes to get close enough to the stage to snap a picture or exchange a few words with the man of their dreams.

After his first number, Jones called for more volume in the speakers. "We need more power," he said.

"You've got a lot of power, Tom," a plaintive female voice called from the audience.

"You've got enough for me," came the response from another admirer.

HIS ELECTRIC red velvet coat and legendary tight pants were not enough for one woman. "How come you don't have a tie on tonight?" she asked. "I wanted to get your tie."

Instead she got a kiss, after removing her glasses and gripping his lapels to keep him close enough. The next coveted kiss went to a woman wearing an "I'm a Tom Jones fan" scarf.

With ushers and usherettes blocking every aisle, the women began to plead "— can I come down, Tom?" He gave permission to several.

As he ripped into his fourth song, "Love Machine," the velvet coat came off and the skin-tight pants were in primary focus.

Lingerie, flowers and scarves were flipped onto the stage at various times. Jones mopped his brow with a rather large bra that the happy owner admitted was a 40-D.

FOR THE FANS who came to hear his music, Jones provided what they wanted — a string of his hits mixed with a few popular tunes like John Denver's "Annie's Song."

He avoided the common performer's trap of trying to introduce new numbers or stylize old ones, choosing to put his powerful voice into his hits — "Delilah," "Daughter of Darkness," "I Who Have Nothing," "Love Me Tonight" and "She's a Lady."

He gave up the shenanigans with the ladies to deliver the last half of his show. He ripped into one song after another, barely allowing the orchestra time to turn the pages to the next numbers.

He let the black dance team, Somethin' Special, from television's "Soul Train" open the show for him. Apparently having used Jones' tailor for their own costumes, the dancers set the pace with sexy gyrations and funky music.

Also a part of the show is comedian Vic Arnell who is a step above the average comic. The Tom Jones show cntinues at Mill Run through Sunday.

Avalon kids more than he sings

There is a chance that FRANKIE AVALON could become a serious singer. His seemingly clear, strong delivery is well suited for a nightclub such as the BLUE MAX of the HYATT REGENCY O'HARE where he is currently entertaining.

And Avalon is now backed by a full orchestra which always leads a little extra something to any singer. The Joe Gattone Orchestra is on stage with him, though the musicians really aren't getting a workout.

Frankie dances, tells jokes, kids with the audience, imitates other celebrities, plays the trumpet and does just about everything but really sing. Oh, he does do a medley of his old 50s hits including "Bobbie Sox" and "Venus." But a full orchestra certainly isn't needed on those. His introductory number, "I Got the Music in Me," and his closing one, "McArthur Park," are about the only straight numbers he does.

This is not to say Avalon isn't entertaining, because he does keep the show lively. Unfortunately almost every routine is a repeat from his last year's engagement in the Blue Max.

And if you haven't heard, Avalon is the father of eight kids. He tells you in the first five minutes and reminds you throughout the entire show. I remember that from the last time, too.

Frankie Avalon is here through Oct. 12. BARBI BENTON returns to the Blue Max Oct 13 for two weeks.

Italian dancers, wine and cuisine are featured along with special displays and decorations at the Hyatt Regency O'Hare today through Oct. 10. The festival has been coordinated with the help of Amerital Unico Chapter of Chicago and the Joint Civic Committee of Italian-Americans.

Thornton Wilder's classic, "OUR TOWN," will open GOODMAN THEATRE'S 50th anniversary season beginning next Wednesday.

The play, directed by George Keathley, is a deceptively simple, yet provocative look at life in the town of Grover's Corner, N. H., from the year 1901 to 1913.

The story focuses on two families, that of Dr. Gibbs and his neighbor, Editor Webb, and the relationship between their children, George Biggs and Emily Webb, which grows from puppy love to marriage and continues until death.

by Genie Campbell

Thornton Wilder's classic, "OUR TOWN," will open GOODMAN THEATRE'S 50th anniversary season beginning next Wednesday.

The play, directed by George Keathley, is a deceptively simple, yet provocative look at life in the town of Grover's Corner, N. H., from the year 1901 to 1913.

The story focuses on two families, that of Dr. Gibbs and his neighbor, Editor Webb, and the relationship between their children, George Biggs and Emily Webb, which grows from puppy love to marriage and continues until death.

Little Pup star larger than earth

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Steven Goulet, 12, of Port Coquitlam, B.C., Canada, for his question:

WHAT IS A WHITE DWARF STAR?

On a clear night, we can count about 2,000 shining stars. But this is a mere handful of the total population. There are about 100 billion stars in our galaxy and billions more in other galaxies strewn throughout the universe. And this multitude of stars comes in different types, sizes and colors. Some are called white dwarfs.

Our sun is an average-type star, about the same size and color as millions of others. Some of the non-average types are whopping giants and supergiants. Others are dwarf stars, no bigger than some of the planets that orbit our average sun.

The first white dwarf star to be discovered belongs to Sirius, the dazzling Dog Star that follows Orion over the winter sky. The search began because Sirius has a slight wobble which suggests that it is pulled by the gravity of a nearby heavenly body.

In 1862 the Dog Star was found to have a small companion star. Naturally it was called the Pup. Though small, the Pup is white hot and much denser than an average star. Since then more than 100 other white dwarf type stars have been found, each one belonging to a much larger star.

Sirius is the brightest star in our skies. Its light takes almost nine years to reach us, which makes it one of the sun's closest neighbors. It is almost twice as big and twice as hot as our sun, and it sheds 30 times more light. The Pup is hotter and almost as heavy as the sun, yet not much bigger than the earth.

Though the big star Sirius is more than twice as massive as the little Pup, it is made of much lighter materials. A cubic meter of material in the Pup weighs 1,500 tons — and a thimbleful is too heavy to lift. This great density is possible when electrons are stripped from gaseous atoms and the nuclei packed close together.

Sirius and the Pup are close enough to belong together and orbit around each other. However, the big star moves only slightly while its small companion orbits around a large oval orbit. Some astronomers suspect that a white dwarf is an old star that gradually collapsed, though nobody is sure.

We now find that astronomers of long ago referred to our sparkling white Sirius as a red star. Perhaps in those days it was outshone by a huge red companion. If this was so, the Pup may have collapsed in the past few thousand years. When the mystery is explained, we may know more about the history of all the white dwarf-type stars.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Margie Laemmerhirt, 11, of Libertyville, Ill., for her question:

WHAT MAKES THE SUNSET RED?

Actually our razzle-dazzle sun is the same glorious color all the time. But we look up at it through the enormous atmosphere that surrounds the earth. Though it seems like an airy nothing, it is made of gaseous atoms and molecules, mixed with vapor, misty moisture and a vast assortment of dusty debris. True, these are very fine particles. But they are large enough to sever the sunbeams and force them to reveal their concealed colors.

A sunbeam is a package of white, or invisible, light pulsing along on different wavelengths. As it comes down through the air, some of its wavelengths are bent and scattered to show their hidden colors. During the day, when the sun shines more or less straight down from above, the short wavelengths are bent. They color the sky blue. At evening, when the sun is low in the sky, its beams slant through a thicker layer of the atmosphere. This scatters the longer wavelengths of light — and they add their gorgeous colors to the sunset.

Greed, bad luck works inevitable ruin

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

"Greed is a terrible thing," soliloquized the bridge philosopher. "I remember some thirty-odd years ago when I was first playing Blackwood, greed plus some bad luck cost me a team match.

"I sat South and after North jumped in diamonds and rebid the suit I went into Blackwood and found that he held three aces, but not one missing king.

"A little thought convinced me that he must hold seven diamonds. So I counted two spades, three hearts, seven diamonds and a club and bid seven notrump. It was quite a shock to find that the ace and king would produce only one spade trick. Still things weren't hopeless. Hearts might break. Or there would be a heart-club squeeze if one defender held the heart stopper and both club stoppers. Or the defense might slip. None of those things happened and I had to go one down.

"Then to make the whole thing doubly bad, the other table in the match sitting North and South were bidding some silly system of minimums and got all the way to three notrump. We hadn't needed to bid the fine seven diamonds. Any slam would have won the match for us."

Film a parallel of Patty?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Why do the children of the rich want to overthrow the society they are in line to inherit? Why are some of those for whom American society works best the ones who repudiate America?

The questions have been asked repeatedly during and since the violent 1960s and the Patty Hearst headlines have brought them into new currency.

The ABC Sunday Night Movie to air this Sunday from 8 to 10 p.m., deals with such a girl in "Katherine."

This is not a biography of Miss Hearst, although ABC knocked its previously scheduled "The Laughing Policeman" off the air for some future date in order to show "Katherine." Any similarities between Miss Hearst and Katherine are not in the details of their lives, but only in the wealth of their families and their advocacy of radical, violent causes.

THE STORY OF the radicalization of Katherine more closely parallels that of Diana Oughton, a young radical killed when what was apparently a bomb factory blew up in Greenwich Village at the end of the last decade.

It provides no answers, except perhaps a hint in its heroine's flashes of willfulness and petulance that when parents spare no expense they spoil the child.

If "Katherine" does little more than repeat the questions of the '60s, it does so dramatically, with real effort at understanding.

The performances are taut and touching. In the title role is Sissy Spacek, who not only plays Katherine in the unfolding action but acts as commentator on her life, dressed in black and sitting on a stool on an empty stage.

Art Carney and Jane Wyatt offer sensitive performances as Katherine's wealthy parents who love her, bu' can't understand her.

Greed, bad luck works inevitable ruin

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

"Greed is a terrible thing," soliloquized the bridge philosopher. "I remember some thirty-odd years ago when I was first playing Blackwood, greed plus some bad luck cost me a team match.

"I sat South and after North jumped in diamonds and rebid the suit I went into Blackwood and found that he held three aces, but not one missing king.

"A little thought convinced me that he must hold seven diamonds. So I counted two spades, three hearts, seven diamonds and a club and bid seven notrump. It was quite a shock to find that the ace and king would produce only one spade trick. Still things weren't hopeless. Hearts might break. Or there would be a heart-club squeeze if one defender held the heart stopper and both club stoppers. Or the defense might slip. None of those things happened and I had to go one down.

"Then to make the whole thing doubly bad, the other table in the match sitting North and South were bidding some silly system of minimums and got all the way to three notrump. We hadn't needed to bid the fine seven diamonds. Any slam would have won the match for us."

Film a parallel of Patty?
